The Last Days in France

A War-time Diary

The Diary of a Staff Officer. London: Methuen. 4/- net.

THIS diary was written by an Air Intelligence Liaison Officer at the advanced northern headquarters of the British Air Forces in France last year, and the diary covers the dramatic period from May 10th to June 17th.

One must accept it in good faith, because, despite a certain natural suspicion with which one regards this type of book, the foreword claims that it has been reproduced exactly as written at the time of the events it records, with the exception of some omissions and a few minor alterations necessary in the interests of safety.

One fact emerges clearly from the book, that the maxim of Frederick the Great—it is pardonable to be defeated, but never to be surprised—was forgotten by the French commanders. The "break through" was a surprise, and from that time a weight of political and military factors combined to roll away any opposition that might have been organised.

The diarist is candid; he gives credit for good bombing by the Luftwaffe; he slates both the British and French for bungling. For example, we read on May 14th, when preparations had been made for a French counter-attack at Sedan at 11 a.m.:—

"14.15 hours. The French counter-attack at Sedan was delayed thirty minutes. A fatal pause. The Germans have meanwhile delivered a further stroke and have widened the gap on either side by three miles each way, and have penetrated forward three miles into open country. The French have lost the whole of their artillery."

Open Country

When the speed of the German armoured units is recalled, it is easy to appreciate the major importance of that thirty minutes' delay. The reference to "open country," too, is interesting, because it is apparent that there was no really efficient system of anti-tank defences, and no depth in the defensive system.

And here is another example. The Air Officer Commanding-in-Chief had obtained the concurrence of Lord Gort (Commander-in-Chief of the B.E.F.) and Generals Gamelin and Georges, in asking the British Cabinet to authorise the employment of the Metropolitan Bomber Force (based in Britain and normally used for deep bombing) in an attempt to stop the rot (May 14th). ". . . I believe that the Air Marshal's action may save the situation yet." But in the next paragraph French General Headquarters had decided that 100 bombers would be enough for the job. It was not, as subsequent events proved. Why did an Army man decline the fullest possible support that could have been given by aircraft at a time of crisis? The diary shows that the artillery around Sedan had gone; would it not have been prudent to use the bombers for their proper tactical purpose—as long-range artillery? The dedication of the book is to the "fullest co-operation of all three Services"; that co-operation, apparently, was banned for the Allied armies in France at a critical stage.

On May 16th the diarist wrote this criticism of the authorities in Britain:

"At home rapid decisions are not being made. The immediacy . . . for releasing—say, 200 fighters to keep down the German bombers is not appreciated. The Air Ministry is to consider further the request made the day before yesterday, and repeated yesterday, with the utmost urgency. The defence of London, as in the last war, will always stand before the defence of France. This lack of fighter support is, in my opinion, the only justified grouse the French have against us."

Again, on the same day:—

"To-day is the day above all when one hopes and prays for unity of command. There are too many masters. . . ."

Radio Messages

There was a clear appreciation that France was failing, but little was being done to stop it—bombers were concentrating on places like Essen instead of the Panzer divisions enlarging the "pocket" at Sedan. It is surprising to find the Germans sending radio messages en clair, apparently for the sake of speed. The Allies, complained the diarist, spent so much time in coding and decoding and sending our sortie pilots to confirm the necessity for action that the many opportunities for action were wasted."

"May 27th—What little hope is left is running low."

May 31st (after commenting on the events of the previous 24 hours)—". . . For the last six months I have said to myself that England will win, but I am afraid my reasons have been rather English. Even to-day I still think England will win, but only because it is my religion that England cannot be defeated. . . ." There is a great deal of that spirit to be found among the English people.

The diary ends with the evacuation of the diarist by air from Nantes on June 17th, a few hours before a Panzer Division swept into the town. It is a document full of interest for everyone; its brevity makes the drama of last May and June all the sharper and fresh light is thrown on many aspects of the battle of France.

Some Recent Novels

The Warrior. By Thomas Ryan. Davies. 9/6 net.

MR. RYAN'S last novel, "Night Falls on Rome," dealt with the adventures of a monk during the time when Rome was cracking before the onslaught of the Goths. It was a powerful and a colourful piece of work, but, to this reviewer's mind, somewhat unpleasantly morbid.

Morbid is the very last word that could be applied to "The Warrior," whose robustness stands, indeed, in striking contrast.

Its scene is laid seven hundred years earlier, during that immensely interesting epoch—perhaps, both intrinsically and by virtue of numerous parallels with modern times, the most interesting period of ancient history—when Alexander of Macedon was smashing the kingdoms of Asia and wedding East with West.

The story—which, by the way, is a story, and not merely a peg on which to hang history—revolves around a Spartan mercenary, one Daxias, a tremendous fighter, and even more tremendous lover, whose work is crowned by the governorship of a stronghold on the Khyber Pass.

It is not to be recommended to school-girls, but it is a fine work that presents a vivid picture of a heroic age.

The Gilded Hoop. By Netta Muskett. London: Hutchinson. 9/- net.

The title of this story is taken from the lines of Thomas Hood:—

"Yet wedlock's a very awful thing!
'Tis something like that feat in the ring
Which requires good nerve to do it—
When one of a 'Grand Equestrian Troupe'
Makes a jump at a gilded hoop,
Not certain at all
Of what may befall
After his getting through it."

Gail Marlen, the heroine of the novel, is in love with Kip Delaney, a successful playwright and actor, who has all the charm and cleverness of a Noel Coward. Unfortunately for both of them, the actor already is married to a jealous little woman, who is bedridden as a result of a railway accident that occurred on their honeymoon. Gail tries to obtain consolation in a marriage with a poor man, but finds when she is through the gilded hoop that he is a mean and selfish bully. In the end, however, she finds happiness with the actor, and there is a second gilded hoop in the last few pages of the book.

This is not a novel of any special significance, but it is in the top flight of the romantic group. There is plenty of incident, and the authoress holds the interest of the reader throughout, there being no pages or passages that one is tempted to "skip."

Shadow of Wings. By Stella Morton. Hodder and Stoughton. 8/3 net.

A STUDY of the most ordinary family in the world, during the week or two before the final outbreak of war. "The Manners family are immortal," says the blurb; they are, because they are everywhere.

In this book Stella Morton shows us how England took the war. The Manners family lives, talks, quarrels, laughs and loves under the "shadow of wings."

The father is a writer and absorbed in his work. The mother—in many ways the most lovable person in the book—is absorbed in the house and family. Tim, the youngest son, spends his time making what the Americans would call wisecracks—and very good wisecracks they are, too—about the situation in general, and his sole ambition is to become a doctor. Judith, one of the daughters, has an affaire with a married man, thinks she is going to have a baby, finds out from the doctor she isn't, and joins the W.R.N.S. Jason, the "artist"—in its most perfidious sense—of the family, works in a bank, wanders around with long hair and armfuls of sketches, and conceives an intense love for a woman of thirty-five (or was it forty-five?)

As the result of a long talk with Elizabeth—the lady in question—Jason decides to join the Navy. The other son already was in the R.A.F., and already was in love with a neighbouring aristocrat. During the course of the book he marries the aristocratic young lady and flies with the R.A.F. to France. The only remaining member of the family—a grown-up daughter—has been married for some time before the start of the book. She has, however, been "growing away" from her husband, but the effect of the war is to bring them together again for the short time before he is called up.

Nothing of importance happens, no elaborate plot; but it is all there—all the anxiety, all the unrest of the period. In every page you feel the pulse of England beat, England preparing for war. "Wings Over England" is one of the best novels since the outbreak of war.

Anno Domino 32. By Paul Hervey Fox. Joseph. 7/6 net.

THIS is a novel about Jesus Christ. Unless you think that any form of writing about Christ other than the Bible is disrespectful, you will probably find "Anno Domini 32" interesting.

It attempts to tell, more or less from the point of view of Judas Iscariot, the story of the last year of Christ's life. It attempts also to account, in a purely rational manner, for all the miracles. For intsance, the author suggests that Jairus's daughter never died, but lay in a sort of coma; that Christ never walked on the water, but only on a sort of mud-flat; that Peter found the piece of silver in the fish's mouth only because he put it there himself so as not to show up what he thought was Christ's madness.

This is a rather childish way of "getting around" the miracles. The miracles themselves are not the most wonderful thing about Christ; other men, before and after, have performed miracles: but few men have retained a following as large as the Christian Church of to-day. The man Christ in Mr. Fox's book could never hold anything but a crowd of fanatics even during his lifetime, and certainly not 1,900 years after his death.

However, whether or not one agrees with the religious views expressed in the book, there is not a boring line in it.

From the point of view of the reader, there is one point worthy of mention. By some manner of means Mr. Fox discovered that Iscariot is a derivation of Ish Kerioth, the man of Kerioth. In an effort to vary his expressions and to prevent the over-frequent use of the word "Judas," he calls that unfortunate man the disciple from Kerioth, the stranger from Kerioth, the man from Kerioth, the student from Kerioth, the philosopher from Kerioth, the wanderer from Kerioth, and, possibly, a dozen more variations of the same theme. If you can overlook this ludicrous succession of sub-titles—and we found it exceedingly difficult to overlook—you will be interested in this book.

Stupidity's Harvest. By Mary Mitchell. Methuen. 8/- net.

IF you like a novel in the "modern style," vaguely cynical, and with the almost traditional uncertain ending, then you will probably like "Stupidity's Harvest." If, on the other hand, you feel that the "crime does not pay" motif should be brought to its logical conclusion in the course of the story, then you will probably find this book somewhat unsatisfactory; for there is an unavenged murder in it, and, what is more, the murderess—who is, incidentally, a very charming young woman—comes out of it almost the heroine.

Caroline, an extremely foolish woman, has a succession of governesses to take charge of her children. Actuated by petty jealousy and envy, she finds some excuse to quarrel with them all and "fire" them. Not only does she dismiss them one after another, but she behaves in a thoroughly insulting manner.

When her daughter, Helena, begins to suspect "something rotten" in the affairs of the home, the husband puts his foot down and insists—for the child's peace of mind—that the latest governess shall stay.

Caroline, of course, puts the wrong interpretation on her husband's behaviour, and proceeds to behave in her usual abominable manner to Therèse, the governess. But she does it once too often, and both lose their tempers; Caroline flings curry powder in Therèse's face, and Therèse retaliates by throwing a chopper at Caroline, and kills her—just like that.

For the sake of the children—once more—the husband decides to gloss over the matter, and Therèse returns to France. There is, by the way, a mild love interest between Therèse and Caroline's young brother, just to make matters more interesting.

By all accounts, this should be an unpleasant book, but, somehow or other, it's not; far from it, in fact. It is, on the whole, a highly diverting story, and, in spite of everything, Therèse is a thoroughly likeable person.

The Cap of Youth. By Naomi Jacobs. London: Hutchinson. 9/-.

This novel is more satisfactory as a character study than as a tale. The plot and the working out of the lives displayed in it are mediocre, and it is only when the author is writing of the persons themselves that she becomes entertaining.

Even then it is only in the description of the less important characters that distinction is attained, for her leading men and women are either lacking in character, or else have too much character of the wrong kind.

Henry and Ellen Preston, the parents of John and Gerald, are delightful old people, simple, sincere and most likeable. John, the hero of the book, strikes one as rather weak-minded, and his indecision and lack of judgment where the choice of a wife is concerned is the sole cause of his misfortunes. Lou Myers, his first wife, is an unpleasing and not very convincing person, whose divorce is evident from the first.

One would like a novel from Miss Jacobs in which healthy people like Preston père et mère would predominate, and love tangles with unsavoury implications would be non-existent.

HUTCHINSON

THE LARGEST BOOK PUBLISHERS IN THE WORLD

Two Gifted Sisters

Alice and Elizabeth Thompson

THE appearance of a new and complete edition of the Poems of Alice Meynell (Oxford University Press) is one of many signs that in a time of doubts and turmoil restless minds are seeking repose in the calm, reflective verse which, it was believed, had languished along with the traditional English Sabbath.

Mrs. Meynell's first contributions appeared early in the 'seventies, and one of her last—a poem about Ireland—in 1920. Collections, which went through many editions, came out between 1893 and 1913, and the Selected Essays in 1914. The earliest of her poetical works are in "Preludes."

William Sharp, in his "Sonnets of This Century" (1888), says that, although Alice Meynell had published only one volume ("Preludes"), she was acknowledged to be one of the sweetest singers among the then living poets. Most of her sonnets show a marked affinity with those of Mrs. Browning. Her "Renouncement" was considered by Sharp to be the most noble and beautiful; Ruskin singled it out for special praise; Rossetti, who knew it by heart, declared it to be one of the three finest sonnets ever written by a woman, and Herbert Palmer, in "Post-Victorian Poetry" (1938), says it is unlikely to be forgotten.

"Preludes"

The "Dublin Magazine," in reviewing the new edition, which includes some hitherto unpublished juvenilia, says that as a poet Alice Meynell survives the admiration of her early followers.

The early "Preludes," by A. C. Thompson—Mrs. Meynell's maiden-name—was issued in 1875. It is a large octavo containing thirty-seven poems. The interest in this rare book is greatly enhanced by six full-page drawings by the poet's sister, Elizabeth Thompson. The picture of Keats's Grave (dated 1870) was done while the afterwards-celebrated artist was finishing her studies at Rome, and of all her works it was the first to be reproduced.

That is the only work in which these gifted sisters collaborated.

They were a self-reliant pair, and they preferred that henceforth their relationship should not be identified with their individual careers. This spirit of independence is borne out in Elizabeth's (Lady Butler's) Memoirs, wherein she explains why her sister's name appears so seldom throughout the book; in the original text it had appeared often, but even in their later years Alice wished to keep her personality retired, and she prevailed on Elizabeth to delete nearly all of the allusions.

In 1873 Elizabeth's painting, "Missing," was hung "above the line" at the Royal Academy, and in the next year "The Roll Call" made her reputation.

Overnight "The Roll Call" became the sensation of London. The Hanging Committee at Burlington House were aroused to enthusiasm when faced with the now famous group of battle-scarred Guardsmen; and it is on record that even that austere body of critics did not forbear to cheer when they learned that the painter of it was a woman. Large sums were offered for it, but the artist had let it go, to an agent, for £100.

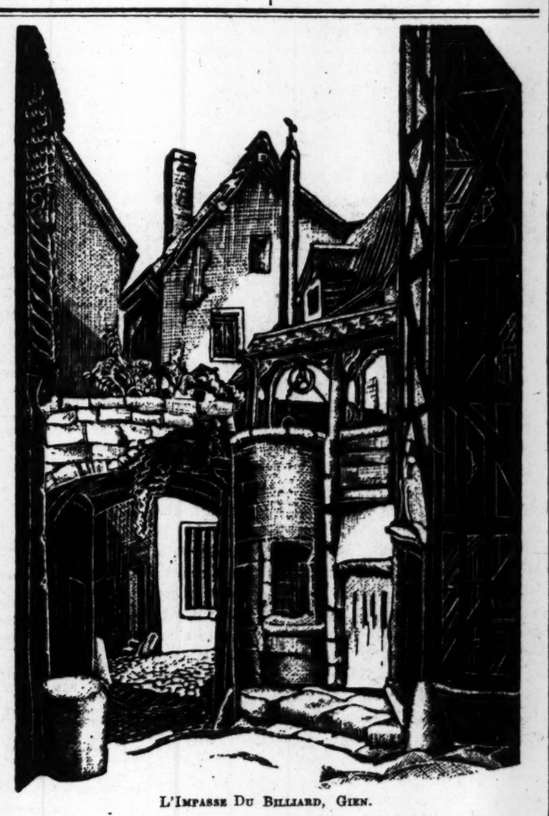

Her next painting, "Quatre Bras," was bought for £2,000, and two years afterwards the Fine Arts Society paid £3,000 for "Inkermann."

"Evicted," the portrayal of a scene within nine miles of Glendalough, was painted at Struan Hill, Delgany, where Sir William and Lady Butler were living in 1889.

The artist recounts, in her Memoirs, that when driving to a shooting-rented by her husband she came to a holding from which the occupants were being driven by all the forces of the law, and the sorrowful incident so distressed her that that she returned and began immediately to record it on canvas.

Lady Butler was pleased with "Evicted" as having true local atmosphere, and at the private view she was gratified on seeing it being examined by the Chief Secretary for Ireland.

For the Nervous

The Treatment of Anxiety

Anxiety and Its Treatment. By John Y. Dent. London: Murray. 3/6.

IN these stressful times this little book makes an opportune appearance. Written by a doctor who for many years has studied the effects of anxiety on mind and body, his wide experience has enabled him to deal with the subject in all its phases, and particularly those induced by over-indulgence in alcohol and drugs.

Even minds the most robust are to-day affected by the cark and worry of life to a much greater degree than ever before in the world's history. Civilisation, so-called, has brought in its train engines of destruction which have filled air and sea with deadliest menace. The result of it all is to make the bravest feel nervous.

In the hundred odd pages of the book the reader will find the information, given by a scientific psychologist, which will fortify him against besetting fears; and, if an addict to either liquor or drugs, advice as to the surest way of curing himself. In truth, what he says on that head is not without a certain applicability to the abstainer as well as to the immoderate imbiber. In greater or lesser degree, anxiety and morbid fears predispose to mental disorganisation and physical deterioration, in the temperate as well as the inebriate, and drive them to courses which only aggravate their condition. In a few convincing chapters the author gives directions which will counteract such tendencies.

The final chapter will have an interest for people in every English-speaking country, neutral and belligerent. It tells how the morale of Londoners has manifested itself with old and young since the beginning of the "Blitzkreig," and how the bravery of the aged is inspiring the young people to stick resolutely at their jobs. A tonic spirit pervades Dr. Dent's book, and makes it a mental invigorator both in peace and war.

The Guild Books

A New Series

The Jury. By Gerald Bullett. Guild Books. 1/-.
High Wages. By Dorothy Whipple. Guild Books. 9d.
The Sailor's Return. By David Garnett. Guild Books. 6d.

THESE books selected from an interesting list of reprints published by the British Publishers' Guild bear out well the statement of their policy—viz., "issuing and maintaining a comprehensive list of good books in cheap editions."

It is hardly necessary to mention that the books are by three important English novelists. What is interesting is a comparison of their methods of approach and the results they achieve.

Gerald Bullett in "The Jury" gives a cross-sectional view of twelve members of a jury. Their contrasts and the strange jig-saw of events is well done. At first one is tempted to label the book a "thriller," but the characterisation is so good that one is forced to review one's verdict. The construction is clever, so clever that at times it is a little too obvious.

Miss Dorothy Whipple reaches fair heights in her story of the experiences and problems of a young woman in a small town in Lancashire.

She knows the Lancashire people well and has caught the real flavour of Lancashire life. But the "problems" they face seem very remote from the problems of to-day. The story, set in the nineteen twenties, has a pathetically adolescent gaiety. As though in those post-war days the people were coming out from under an anæsthetic, the thirties being the beginning of consciousness and the forties the real pain. The book is good of its kind, but it tends to have dated.

"The Sailor's Return," by David Garnett, is the best of these three novels. The story tells of an English sailor returning to an English village with a black princess for a wife. Mr. Garnett's prose is amazingly simple. He gets the greatest results by using the simplest language. One does not feel that the book has been written by a professional novelist. The problems are not italicised, his people live, and problems, people and environment are a homogeneous mass. In this respect he resembles Tchekov.

The War in France and Britain

Contemporary History Viewed at Close Range

The Wounded Don't Cry. By Quentin Reynolds. Cassell. 6/- net.

THE publishers of this book state their belief that it is "the best book that has come out of the war so far." This is strong language! There has been the Dunkirk cycle, the Bordeaux cycle, which "The Wounded Don't Cry," in part, overlaps. Of narratives in the second group, "The Road to Bordeaux" and Rupert Downing's Odyssey, "If I Laugh" (reviewed recently in these columns) are still fresh, not to say raw, in the memory. To make distinctions of quality, therefore, is no easy task.

But if we hesitate in the grading of these narratives, it is still true that Quentin Reynolds is equipped with a unique lens in his mental camera. He went to France from the U.S.A., arriving in Paris on May 10th, 1940—which, as he observes, was not bad timing!

He witnessed what he calls the death of Paris. He saw a more horrible thing—the bombing of Beauvais, when the refugees were on the move, and he wondered what happened to the hospital staffs and wounded he left in that doomed town. He is still wondering.

Compared with some of his colleagues, Reynolds had a soft time in his trek to Bordeaux. The vessel which took him to England brushed shoulders (so to speak) with a magnetic mine; he came to Ireland, expecting to get a story, and was disappointed—except for the stories of another kind they told him at Elm Park Golf Club. His accounts of the R.A.F. and of his experiences with a Channel convoy are good journalism, and just that!

The Bombing of London

But his story of the bombing of London is in a different category, and does something to justify the publishers' eulogy.

He was accredited from Collier's Weekly: and his attitude was one of light-hearted efficiency, gradually modified as the book proceeds until in the last pages he is less of a reporter—or that dignitary "our observer"—than a ... on behalf of the heroic civilian population of London.

This is not to say that the book is propaganda. Mr. Reynolds is probably sincere when he declares that he undertook it for his own satisfaction, to the tune of sixty thousand words. It is contemporary history, viewed at close range. Now and then, the writer's brilliant power of compression leads him into an over-statement, or even an erroneous one—which he will, however, qualify few pages further along. Dunkirk was not the worst disaster that ever befell an army. It was potentially the worst.

Unanswered Questions

"Why the whole force of the Luftwaffe was not hurled at those men on the beaches until they were all killed is one of the major mysteries of the war . . . A month later it was too late."

It remains a mystery, for the moment. But it is not entirely just to stress the fact that the English fighter 'planes were a long time coming, and when they came were no great help . . . What the R.A.F. did was to hold up the German advance to Dunkirk and delay it. Those who think in terms of faith, as opposed to terms of physical force, may seek their own explanation for the seemingly inexplicable dual delay. Why did the Luftwaffe not complete that work of annihilation? And why did Hitler allow England to catch her breath? Even Mr. Reynolds does not attempt an answer.

This may not be the "greatest" book the war has produced. But it has great qualities, and some unforgettable human stories. There is the huge Senegalese, one of the wounded who do not cry: there is the spaniel on the roof, in whose company the writer lived through one of the earlier nights of the blitz: and the little girl, carried out from the cellar of a burning house, "asleep," and packed into the waiting ambulance after the doctor had worked for a little. "Shall I take them to hospital, doctor?" the woman driver asked. "No," he said, wearily.

Sob-stuff? Possibly—for some. But this is the sort of thing that even tough guys will write, after a certain kind of horror. Everyone should read this volume. On the whole, because his touch is so deft, Mr. Reynolds lets us down lightly.

I Wanted to Murder. By Clarissa Fairchild Cushman. Methuen. 8/- net.

"I Wanted to Murder" is one of those quiet, sophisticated tales of crime in which certain American writers have begun to specialise; and it is as good as any of its kind, which means very good, indeed.

It was, perhaps, a little unfortunate for the narrator that she happened herself to be a writer of crime stories, and that her latest manuscript happened to have been presented—in a "doodling" moment—with a highly incriminating title.

This is a subtle and well-planned tale, with—what is not so usual—an inquest that really holds the interest.

Who is to Blame?

In Dail Eireann yesterday, Mr. Sean Lemass, Minister for Supplies, announced that, in consequence of a telephonic communication which he had from London, the ration of tea in Eire must be reduced from one ounce to half an ounce per week. Only on Wednesday the Order fixing the weekly ration at one ounce had been promulgated. The Minister told the House that all supplies of tea for Eire were bought through the British Tea Control. This arrangement had been made at the beginning of the war, at the instigation of the British Government, acting "in its own interests," and there had been a successive reduction in the quota allocated to Eire, first to 70, then to 60, then to 50, and ultimately to 25 per cent. The British authorities had explained that this drastic "cut" in Eire's share of tea was made inevitable by Great Britain's shipping losses on the high seas; but Mr. Lemass declared that he could not accept this explanation. The fact was that the British Tea Control, while reducing the allowance to Eire—an insignificant amount in comparison with Great Britain's own consumption—had not taken any steps to reduce the allocation of supplies to the British wholesalers, which remained at eighty-five per cent. Mr. Lemass added that he did not propose "to speculate as to the possible real explanation of the rapid reduction in our tea supplies," but it was clear that the British Government's explanation was "inadequate."

We do not propose to enter into a controversy with Mr. Lemass on this matter, since we realise the difficulties of his present position, and the even greater difficulties that lie ahead. Nevertheless, there are certain things that must be said. Eire's Ministry for Supplies up to the present has not shown conspicuous foresight in its dealings with a situation, the perils of which have been manifest to the man-in-the-street since the outbreak of the war. Take the glaring case of the petrol muddle. Take the case of wheat, of butter, of fertilisers. For sixteen months of war the Minister for Supplies allowed the people of the twenty-six counties to live in a fools' paradise, as if the war were being fought on Aldebaran, whereas, with an ordinary degree of precaution, the country might have been safeguarded against the lean times that were staring everybody, except the Ministry for Supplies, in the face. Now Mr. Lemass blames the British Tea Control. The British have hit him, as it were, with the child in his arms. Doubtless, it is true that the allowance to the British wholesalers has not been reduced below eighty-five per cent. of normal requirements; but is it not also true that the British themselves have been rationed in respect of tea since July 9th, 1940. Their weekly ration during the last nine months has been two ounces a head per week, while in Eire tea rationing begins only to-day.

During those nine months it would have been possible to conserve supplies in this country in such a way as to ensure some form of equitable distribution in the event of a stoppage, or even of a shortage of fresh imports. Mr. Lemass and other Ministers exhorted householders to lay in stocks—of tea, as of other commodities. Now he suggests that those who took his advice ought to hand over their provisions to charitable institutions. Surely it was the Government's bounden duty to have rationed supplies of essential foodstuffs long ago, in order that those who could not afford to stock their larders might not be exposed to undue suffering. For reasons known only to Ministers themselves, they neglected this duty; and now the blow is beginning to fall. The Government cannot be acquitted of blame for the sudden deterioration in the position regarding supplies. It is discovering at last the ancient truth that in this life nobody can have things both ways. In the Dail on Thursday Mr. de Valera said that "the people of this country determined long ago that they were going to live their own lives, and that they were not attached to one Empire or another." Shortage of supplies is one of the prices that must be paid for neutrality; and the Government ought to have recognised this fact from the start.

Withdrawal in Libya

Just at the moment when the people of Great Britain and her Dominions were rejoicing at the remarkable successes that had been achieved by her forces in Africa and in the Mediterranean Sea, the announcement that Benghazi had been evacuated by General Wavell came as a most unpleasant surprise. Detailed reports from Cairo are not yet available; but it seems to be reasonably certain that the Army of the Nile is withdrawing steadily from its advanced positions in Western Cyrenaica, and some military experts take the view that General Wavell may decide to retire to the strongly fortified positions which he held in the Western Desert before his daring assault on the Italians at Sidi Barrani last December. According to the latest bulletins from Cairo, the "concentration of our advanced forces is continuing." The official spokesman declares that "there is not the slightest cause for anxiety." "We are choosing our own battlefields," he declares. "We are hitting the enemy hard, and have inflicted heavy casualties, with slight losses to ourselves." Be that as it may, there can be no doubt that the withdrawal from the Benghazi district was wholly unexpected by the general public. Evidently, it has been caused by the sudden appearance in North Africa of German mechanised detachments in substantial force, which have lost no time in the launch of a violent offensive. Up to the present no accurate estimate can be formed regarding the strength of this force; but it is obvious that advantage has been taken by the Germans of the seventy-mile stretch of sea between Sicily and North Africa to ferry some of the famous Panzerdivisionen across. It even has been suggested that last week's naval battle off Cape Matapan was provoked deliberately by the "Axis" Powers in order to leave the Sicilian Channel free for the transport of German tanks and armoured cars. The strength of General Wavell's mechanised forces in North Africa is a closely-guarded secret; but his successes against the Italians have established their efficiency beyond all doubt. It is quite likely, therefore, that the British will continue to beat a genuinely strategic retreat, allowing the Italo-German forces to lengthen their lines of communication across the desert, in order to be able to give them battle in their own time and at a place of their own choice. There can be no real comparison between General Wavell's withdrawal and the retreat of the Italians during December and January. Marshal Graziani's armies were virtually destroyed, and lost all their equipment, whereas so far, at any rate, the Army of the Nile seems to have sustained no serious losses. In modern warfare, when battles are fought between machines, territorial gains and losses, particularly in a terrain such as that of the Western Desert, are of relatively small importance. Mechanised vehicles, so long as they can be assured of continuous supplies of fuel, can rove about almost at will over long stretches of territory; and we are sure that General Wavell would be the last man to underestimate the efficiency or the braveness of the German Army. Once again the issue probably will be decided not in the sands of the Libyan desert, but in the waters of the Mediterranean Sea. In order to be able to meet the British on anything like equal terms, the Germans must be able to safeguard their lines of communication between Sicily and North Africa. In other words, they and the Italians must be able to thwart the British Navy's efforts to cut those lines. The layman can only wait and see.

Potted Music

In the second week of this year it was disclosed that Broadcasting House had been severely damaged on two occasions. It is now revealed that when the St. George's Hall was gutted recently in a night raid the B.B.C. theatre organ was completely destroyed. The organ was not the largest in the world, but it was one of the most up-to-date, and had, it might be mentioned, no fewer than 260 stops. The cost of the organ ran into five figures. While we expressed our sympathy with the B.B.C. at the time when their beautiful building in Portland place was damaged, we cannot feel the same sympathy for them at the loss of their theatre organ. We feel sorry for the organists, for few organs could offer them as many as 260 stops upon which to exercise their ingenuity, and we regret, too, that the B.B.C. should be out of pocket to the extent of five figures; but, apart from these considerations, some people will not be unduly sorry that the theatre organ is gone. The cinema organ and the theatre organ apparently have become essential parts of the civilised community. In all the large cities there is at least one cinema or theatre which sports an organ, with appropriate coloured lights and all the trappings. These cinema organs fill in the gap between one programme and the next, and, in spite of the 260 stops which are at the disposal of the organist, the musical standard of the recitals is rarely high. The fault lies more with the instrument than with the organist; for many of the organists are excellent musicians. Organ "fans," no doubt, think it outrageous to find fault with an instrument so versatile as the modern theatre organ; but it is the very versatility of the instrument that is responsible for abuse. It lacks the clarity of trumpets or horns and the romantic quality of violins; it can give a poor imitation of either of them. The complexity of the instrument leads the organist into many a pitfall; there is so varied and so interesting a selection of effects to be attained that he is continually tempted to insert a peal of bells, a roll of drums, or a barking dog into every piece of music which he plays. Probably the greatest abuse of the organ is its use as a means to spread the insidious "potted classic" which is served up in many of the cinemas—with appropriate coloured slides on the screen—as good music. The theatre organ and its "potted classics" have a detrimental effect on musical appreciation, and for that reason many music-lovers will not be altogether sorry to hear that the B.B.C. theatre organ has been destroyed.

25 YEARS AGO

From the Irish Times, April 5, 1916.

The Budget and the Members.

The Parliamentary Correspondent of The Times writes:—Members accepted the new taxes philosophically enough. As an instrument for raising the unprecedented revenue of 500 millions, two and a half times as much as was raised in the last year of peace, the Budget was generally accepted as a magnificent indication of our financial position. A point which Mr. McKenna did not make was strongly emphasised in the lobby. Our net debt at the end of the financial year will be more than four times our national revenue. The limit of safety can be judged from the case of English municipalities, which are allowed to borrow up to ten times their rateable value. This rough-and-ready standard may help the observer to a broad appraisement of the Budget as an index of national security.

The Western Front.

Last night's British despatch records the shooting down of a German aeroplane, in which both the pilot and the observer were killed. At some points there was artillery activity, and mines were exploded about Neauville St. Vaast and the Hohenzollern Redoubt.

AMBULANCE GIFT TO RED CROSS

PRESENTED BY JEWISH COMMUNITY

A thirty-four horse-power Chrysler Imperial ambulance, with special indoor heating and lighting and Purdah glass, which is transparent only from the inside, was presented to the Irish Red Cross Society by the Committee of the Jewish Ambulance Fund at Red Cross Headquarters, Merrion square, yesterday.

Professor Leonard Abrahamson, M.D., F.R.C.P.I., who formally handed the ambulance over to Mr. Justice Maguire, President of the Irish Red Cross Society, said that the whole idea had germinated in the minds of the younger members of the Jewish community who were engaged in defence work. They were glad to be able to contribute in some way a cog in the international organisation, which demonstrated in a living way that men and women all over the world, whatever their race or creed, could work together for the alleviation of human suffering. He expressed the hope that neither this ambulance nor any other ambulance in this country would ever have to deal with the ghastly tragedy of war.

Mr. Justice Maguire, accepting the presentation on behalf of the Society, said that they were very grateful to the community, because not only did their gift provide the Society with another ambulance, but it also showed recognition of the efforts the Society was making to carry on Red Cross work in times of war and peace.

The Committee had expressed the wish that the ambulance should be kept in Dublin, and accordingly the ambulance was handed over to Mr. Rory Henderson, Divisional Director to the Dublin Area.

LONDON LETTER

ROSY CHEEKS AND GOOD COMPLEXIONS

59 FLEET STREET, LONDON,
FRIDAY NIGHT.

A FEATURE of present-day life in Britain is the health of the people, and it can be noticed moving about the street that even the men are getting good complexions and rosy cheeks. Doctors are said to be surprised that there have been so few illnesses, and a committee of doctors with a view to solving what to them is a problem are to visit public shelters and make exhaustive inquiries. They will endeavour to ascertain how far health conditions are related to the class which they are to study, and what difference there is, if any, between the health records of the poorer sections, those who earn good wages, and those who are in the class above these.

A doctor states that the first cause to which the present comparative immunity from epidemic disease may be traced is the excellent health standard Britain had attained in 1939. It is possible that much of the improved health is due to the greater use of fresh air necessitated by present conditions.

Lavery Exhibition

The exhibition of the works of Sir John Lavery at the Leicester Gallery is due to the fact that the great artist was busily preparing an exhibition of his more recent works when he was seized by his fatal illness, and the arrangements could not be completed, but the present exhibition has been carried to fruition by his executors, and the work has been exceedingly well done. It includes many of the artist's famous pictures and portraits, including one of Mr. Churchill painted in the South of France, while there are the well-known portraits of Lady Lavery, Mr. Lloyd George, Shirley Temple and Mr. John Masefield.

There are a number of paintings of scenes depicting the Glasgow Exhibition, the Riviera, the peace celebrations, Henley and other notable events. The collection brought together is the most comprehensive and a worthy memorial of a very great artist.

Milk Rationing

Under the milk rationing scheme, to come into operation at Easter, the distributors are responsible for restricting supplies to customers so that they receive six-sevenths of their normal amount each week, and this can be arranged by delivering the full amount on six days and nothing on the seventh day, or by delivering half the normal quantity on two days a week. This scheme appeared to have the merit of simplicity, but apparently the distributors are not entirely satisfied to take the responsibility, and Lord Woolton is being approached by the milk roundsmen through the two trade unions of which they are members to fix a daily unit of milk for each person. In view of the varying requirements of different individuals, it is hoped that the original scheme of the Food Ministry will be put into operation, since it is based upon the previous consumption of each family.

Burma Railway

The decision of the British Government to help finance the Burma end of the railway which is to aid the transport facilities of the wonderful Burma road, has met with approval in the City of London, as it is appreciated that the proposed plan could not have been carried through by private enterprise at such a time. Such a railway as that proposed has long been overdue, as it will run between the Bay of Bengal and China, and later should prove an excellent commercial proposition. It will help Burma both politically and economically, and provide a further outlet to a trade which hitherto has been mainly confined to India and Britain.

Amy Johnson Memorial

The Amy Johnson Memorial Scholarship in Aviation for Women is receiving good support, and interest in the fund has been stimulated by the fact that Amy Johnson, when funds were raised to commemorate her flight to Australia, advocated the use of the money to found the Amy Johnson Scholarship in Aviation at University College, Hull, and herself gave a considerable sum to make the scheme possible. It is now known that she spent a great amount of her time conscientiously replying to letters seeking advice from women who desired to take up aviation, while ever trying to advance the standing of women in professions generally, aviation particularly. Many of these people are supporting the memorial.

IRISHMAN'S DIARY

Economy

The big boys of the Government have told us that we must save food and fuel as far as possible, and it seems to me that the Dublin Corporation could do a good deal in regard to the fuel saving by curtailing the light-hours of the street lighting in certain parts.

In outlying parts of the city and in the suburbs many of the lamps are still alight at 7 a.m., when the sky is well lighted up by the rising sun, and the thrushes and blackbirds are welcoming a new day. The lights could be dispensed with for at least an hour before that time in all these outlying parts, and probably could be put out at 1 a.m. in many. In Dun Laoghaire, even in normal times, certain of the street lamps go out at 12.30 a.m.

As regards the gas lamps, a saving could be made in fuel by reverting to the old hand method of lighting, thus dispensing with the little pilot lights that now burn all day long in each lamp. The amount of gas used by these must be large, and though the reversion would mean more labour, we are trying to save fuel, not work, these times.

The Continental Touch

Had it not been for the outbreak of war the Franco-Irish Rugby struggles which I mentioned in my paragraph about Charles Hallaran might have been resumed this season.

Just before the outbreak of hostilities the four home Unions had agreed to admit France into the international competition again, and, so far as I remember, dates for the matches had actually been fixed. This was the outcome of many years of discussion, and the prospects of the renewal of this link with the continent must have been welcomed by all who remember those gigantic tussles which took place just ten years ago.

In those matches the "continental temperament" was very much in evidence; I, for one, will never forget the sight of sixteen-stone French forwards affectionately embracing one another when their side scored, or jumping on the ball with tears of rage streaming down their cheeks when in danger of defeat.

Ernie Crawford

Those were the days when that great full-back, Ernie Crawford, was in his prime, and when "Jemmie" Clinch was still a youngster.

The story is still told in Rugby circles of how two French three-quarters, having beaten every defender with the exception of Ernie, were pounding down on this last upholder of Irish honour. A try seemed inevitable, and the roofs were being almost lifted off the stands by the roars of excitement.

Ernie, however, never moved until the pair were within a yard of him, when, with a shout of "passez," he hurled himself at the thighs of the player without the ball, bringing him to earth in true Crawford style. His knowledge of French psychology had been good; for in the excitement of the moment, the man in possession had thought that it was his colleague who had called for a pass, and had promptly flung him the ball.

It was such incidents as these that made these matches with France even more exciting than games with England, Scotland, or Wales, and I hope that we will see the fleur-de-lis at Lansdowne road again when the war is over.

Troubled Waters

Our Motoring Correspondent tells me that he has received more letters than he possibly can deal with in his notes urging him to further efforts in the "Facing the Facts About Petrol" campaign.

One correspondent, a medico presumably, says the doctor in his district gets eight gallons of petrol a month and the undertaker 40 gallons. Cause and effect?

Another correspondent, whose name has been twice on everybody's lips, so to speak, in the last year, is unable to get petrol to deliver the food he produces, and he complains that his clergyman motored ten miles the other day to ask him a question that could easily have "kept" for a week or a month.

In view of the motion that Dr. T. F. O'Higgins is to bring before the Dail on the question of petrol rationing, cheerful facts about rationing irrationalities might more usefully, perhaps, be sent to him.

"Browned Off"

War changes dictionaries as well as maps, and the present conflict has already brought forth one expression that seems likely to establish itself as firmly as did "blighty" a quarter of a century ago.

I notice nowadays that none of the younger people in the North are "fed up"; for, though the same feeling of discontent may beset them, they no longer think in terms of appetite, but in terms of colour, and now they confess to being "browned off."

I know nothing of the derivation of this latest and anything but elegant term, except that it is in general use in the British Army. It is an elastic expression.

One cannot only be "browned off" in a general sense, but in a particular direction. Belfast shop-girls who have had a tiff with the floor-walker no longer "fall out" with this functionary, but become "browned off" at, with or towards him. I confess I do not know which is the correct term.

DESERT BATTLE PREPARATIONS

British Taking Up Positions

GERMAN TANKS IN RAPID MOVEMENT

AN indication that General Wavell's Army of the Nile will pursue the strategy of further withdrawal until a point is reached where "we are satisfied we can give battle with assurance of success," was contained in a Cairo message last night, quoting a high official spokesman, who left Benghazi only fifteen minutes before the last British troops.

The troops were withdrawing in good order to prepared positions, and, according to the latest communiqué from Cairo G.H.Q., "the concentration of our advanced elements is continuing."

An earlier message from Cairo quoted the military spokesman there as saying: "There is not the slightest cause for anxiety. We are choosing our own battlefields." The British forces are hitting the enemy hard, he added, and have already inflicted heavy casualties, with slight losses to themselves.

NO FEARS IN CAIRO

Tanks, supported by infantry and aircraft, comprise the forward striking units of the Axis forces, which are said to consist of evenly-balanced Italo-German mechanised detachments.

It is known, says the Press Association Military Correspondent, that German Panzer units are in the Benghazi area in considerable force. It is thought that the Germans crossed from Sicily—the channel is only 70 miles across—to the nearest point in North Africa, and then probably crept down the coast in the darkness.

The German attack was probably designed to relieve the British pressure on Eritrea; but, says the Press Association, it is three weeks too late, and the fall of Massawa, the natural outlet from Abyssinia to the Red Sea, will virtually be the end of Italy's oldest colony. There has so far been no reply to the British call to the threatened port to surrender. The demand was made by a British officer, who, bearing a white flag, was sent to Massawa to point out that it was necessary for the British to have the port in order to feed the civilian population of the Eritrean capital.

3,000 PRISONERS

Over 3,000 prisoners have already been counted at Asmara, and more are coming in as the British advance towards Massawa and Dessie continues, stated the Cairo communiqué last night. Progress along the road to Massawa has been temporarily delayed by extensive demolitions.

In Abyssinia the advance movements closing in on the capital are proceeding satisfactorily.

DESERT WARFARE

The Cairo military spokesman, continuing, said that the British were choosing their own battlefields, as when Marshal Graziani advanced in the autumn.

"Desert warfare," he said, "is unlike any other land operations. It can only be compared with sea warfare. At sea it does not matter where the battle is fought—it can be fought at one's front door, and it does not matter in the slightest if the enemy advance across many miles of sea to get there so long as he suffers casualties. The sole object of war in worthless desert wastes is to punish the enemy by inflicting the greatest possible damage to his men and material, with the ultimate object of wearing down and defeating him."

The military spokesman added: "It would have suited us better and caused less trouble if we had been able to defeat the Italian Army on Egyptian soil instead of treking to Benghazi. Cyrenaica, if anything, is a liability, and we would have been quite happy to defeat the enemy at Sollum as at Benghazi."

"ALMOST USELESS"

"Despite our retirement to prepared positions," he said, "we are hitting the enemy hard, and have already inflicted many casualties, whereas ours are slight. Benghazi is almost useless to either side. It is an open secret that we have not been using it since its capture, and during last week it has become even more useless, since we have carried out a systematic demolition of the harbour works, which are already cluttered up with sunken Italian ships.

"All eyes will be turned to the Western desert in the next few days, as the Italian-German column advances deeper into the desert, but rational observers will realise that the value of such an advance cannot be measured by yards, but by losses in material and man-power," added the spokesman.

Although the announcement of the evacuation was issued at 10 o'clock on Thursday night, the cinemas in Cairo, says the Press Association, were crowded with British troops at midnight, indicating that the British Command is satisfied that their effectives in the Western desert are adequate to deal with any fresh development.

The Press Association Military Correspondent says that the geographical position of Benghazi is such that, unless it is strongly fortified (which it is not), a swoop by armoured units could easily isolate it from the rear. With modern armoured equipment it is possible to produce at any time a stronger force to make a rush at one particular position. The real point is how long these tactics can be maintained.

FROM SICILY

In speculating how German troops and their heavy mechanised equipment have got through to Africa, it has, says the Correspondent, to be remembered that the Sicilian Channel is only seventy miles across. Suggestions that the Italian Fleet deliberately put to sea in order to let a vas tconvoy slip through to Africa are exaggerated. During the Matapan battle possibly one or two stray ships slipped through.

TRANSPORTS SUNK?

The Press Association learned in London yesterday that not all the German troops who left Italy for North Africa, presumably for use in the advance on Benghazi, have arrived. Since January 1 the British Admiralty have announced the sinking of 109,000 tons of shipping in the Mediterranean by British submarines. This, says the Press Association, is a minimum figure, and it is reasonable to assume that some of it was engaged in transporting German troops to Libya. The figure of 109,000 tons does not include successes which British air raids may have had in attacks on transports or other vessels.

It may certainly be taken that British submarines have been far from idle, both in the Mediterranean generally and in that section across which German troops would be transported to the Libyan front, says the Press Association. Successes have already been announced against the Italian Navy east of Suez. The Italians had seven destroyers and two torpedo boats in this area when they entered the war. One destroyer was sunk on October 2, another on April 1, and two more on April 3, so that on these figures the Italians now have three destroyers and two torpedo boats in the Red Sea area. In addition the British Admiralty have since Italy entered the war announced the destruction of twenty two Italian U boats. It is understood that four of these submarines were destroyed east of Suez and, in addition, one was captured.

It is considered unlikely that invasion barges were used in the transport of German troops from Italy to North Africa as the weather in the Mediterranean in March would certainly make them most uncomfortable, and even dangerous, craft.

GERMAN COMMENT

That German flying forces are responsible for the British evacuation of Benghazi was the view expressed in yesterday's Deutsche Allgemeine Zeitung. Commenting on the report that the British had not used Benghazi as a port, the paper says:—"Not so long ago the London Government attempted to console the British population for the growing shortage of fat with the catchword 'Butter or Benghazi.' The end is neither butter nor Benghazi."

Yesterday's Cairo communiqué read:

Libya.—The concentration of our advanced elements is continuing.

Eritrea.—Over 3,000 prisoners have already been counted at Asmara, and many more are still coming in from enemy troops, who have been overrun by our rapid advance eastwards towards Massawa and southwards along the main road towards Dessye. Extensive demolitions along the road to Massawa have now temporarily delayed our advance in this sector. Elsewhere operations continue to develop successfully.

Abyssinia.—Our advance in all sectors is proceeding satisfactorily.

AWASH PROGRESS

A Nairobi communiqué yesterday stated:—

"Later reports of the capture of Soroppa by our troops operating from the Yavello area confirm that the enemy lost 27 Europeans, including a brigadier, and 360 Africans, of whom 50 were killed. Captured material included four guns and fifteen machine guns. Our offensive on the broad front between Neghelli and Yavello is progressing satisfactorily.

"In the Harar sector our troops are approaching the River Awash. Enemy resistance by a mixed force of infantry, artillery and tanks on Wednesday was overcome, and resulted in the capture of fifty Europeans and four guns. The enemy suffered some casualties from our artillery fire, which also caused their tanks to beat a hurried retreat."

AERIAL ATTACKS

The R.A.F. Middle East communique yesterday reported that bomber aircraft made heavy attacks on motor transport convoys in the Mersa Brega area of Tripolitania during the night of Apirl 2-3. A successful bombing raid was also carried out on Tripoli. In Abyssinia, in support of Army operations, R.A.F. bombers attacked concentrations of transport on the Assab-Dessie road.

OFFICIAL VIEWPOINT

Emphasising that British strategy in Libya was "in very safe hands," the spokesman at Cairo, says the Associated Press, pointed out that the Germans and Italians had a 436 mile line of communication to maintain between Tripoli and El Agheila.

The Germans were using their own armoured vehicles and tanks, and the Italians had their own equipment, but the total force was under the single command of the Italian, General Garibaldi, it was said. They were advancing behind a screen of aircraft, which was dive-bombing, though on nothing like the same scale as in France.

The British disclosed that part of the German forces reached Tripoli before Marshal Graziani's final rout in Libya.

DUNDALK ARMED RAID

THREE MEN DETAINED

Mr. Dick Maguire, the Dundalk Post Office clerk, who was shot through the leg when armed men attempted to get away with £960 from Dundalk Post Office yardway on Thursday last, is reported to be quite comfortable in the Louth Infirmary.

Three young men—all residents of the town—have been detained by the police.

SLAV REQUEST TO U.S.

SUPPLIES OF WAR MATERIAL

YUGOSLAVIA has asked for the supply of "certain types" of war material by the United States, which is now endeavouring to find out whether this is obtainable, says Associated Press.

President Roosevelt, making this disclosure yesterday, stated that the request was made when he conferred with the Yugoslav Minister on Thursday.

BERLIN SAYS "NO CHANGE"

According to Wilhelmstrasse circles yesterday, no change has occurred regarding the situation. Extreme reserve continues to be maintained in official and semi-official circles, and it is merely pointed out that members of the German Legation have now left Belgrade, with the exception of a skeleton staff

According to Associated Press, "Rumanian circles" were accredited by German Radio yesterday with the belief that the situation in Yugosalvia was growing grave, and that "events would soon take a dramatic turn."

Ankara Wireless yesterday quoted a German News Agency despatch from Bucharest, according to which the Yugoslav Embassy in the Rumanian capital has asked all Yugoslavs living in Rumania to return home immediately.

"ZERO HOUR"

BELGRADE, Saturday

The Yugoslav Cabinet met for 4½ hours in an extraordinary session, which ended at 2.30 this morning.

Some informed quarters predicted that zero hour in the crisis had arrived.

It was disclosed last night that King Peter, in a Royal Proclamation, ordered the mobilisation of the entire "military might of Yugoslavia" on April 1st.—Associated Press.

SLAVS NOT AFRAID

FOREIGN MINISTER'S STATEMENT

PRESS ASSOCIATION.

ATHENS, Friday.

M. Nintchitch, the Yugoslav Foreign Minister, has disclosed in an interview with the Belgrade correspondent of the Greek newspaper, Kathimerini, that the Simovitch Government accepted in principle the pact signed in Vienna by M. Tsvetkovitch.

Talks initiated with a view to safeguarding Yugoslav national independence were, however, broken off.

"As far as I am concerned," M. Nintchitch is quoted as saying, "I did all I could to preserve Yugoslavia from the torment of war. The Government accepted the pact which had been signed and embarked on talks to clarify certain questions connected with the sovereignty of the Yugoslav State. But these conversations, whose object was to define our attitude—namely, that we felt enmity towards no one, but that our sole aim was to safeguard national independence—broke down.

"Our nation has faced other threats in the past," M. Nintchitch concluded. "We are not afraid. If we have to fight we shall fight, and everyone may rest assured that we shall do our duty."

Dr. Matchek, leader of 5,000,000 Croats, who entered the Cabinet as Vice-Premier, took the oath before Gedimovitch, the Prime Minister, yesterday, the Belgrade radio states.

CATTLE DISEASE

FIVE DUBLIN CASES; ONE IN CO. LIMERICK

Six outbreaks of foot-and-mouth disease were confirmed yesterday, the areas reported to be affected being in the Counties of Dublin and Limerick and Dublin City.

Five animals of a herd, approximating forty, the property of Patrick Doran, Tymon North, Tallaght, and four cows and a heifer, which were on the farm of the Carmelite Convent, Firhouse, Tallaght, have contracted the scourge.

Three cows of a herd at Churchtown, Dundrum, belonging to Miss K. Buckley, Vartry Dairy; two beasts, the property of Joseph Hannon, Johnstown, Blanchardstown, and four cows, which are part of a dairy herd being in-fed at Bluebell, Inchicore, the property of Daniel Guidon, Inchicore, are also confirmed cases.

In County Limerick a fresh outbreak has occurred, two beasts of a herd of Michael Cahill at Clonoul, Croagh, being involved.

AUSTRALIAN PREMIER'S VISIT TO DUBLIN

NO hint was given as to what matters were discussed by Mr. de Valera and Mr. R. J. Menzies, the Australian Premier, when they lunched together in a private room in Government Buildings yesterday.

After lunch the two Prime Ministers chatted as they made a tour of Leinster House, inspecting the Dail and Senate Chambers. There was a cordial handshake before Mr. Menzies left to see the sights of County Wicklow, in the course of which he was entertained to dinner by Mr. Sean T. O'Kelly at Hunter's Hotel, New Rath Bridge, Ashford. The visitor's time was taken up so much by the Irish statesmen that he had no opportunity of seeing Press representatives, but he promised to give an interview this morning.

Mr. Menzies arrived at Amiens Street Station about eleven o'clock yesterday morning after spending the night with the Duke of Abercorn, Governor of Northern Ireland, at Hillsborough, Co. Down. He had boarded the train at Lisburn, where he was seen off by Mr. J. Milne Barbour, the Northern Ireland Minister for Finance, and was received on behalf of the Great Northern Railway Company by Mr. W. F. Graham, deputy traffic manager of the company.

He was met at Amiens street by Mr. Sean T. O'Kelly, An Tanaiste; Mr. J. P. Walshe, Secretary of the Department of External Affairs, and Mr. J. Belton, of the same Department. Mr. O'Kelly and the visitor chatted for a while, and then Mr. Menzies inspected a guard of honour composed of members of the Garda under Superintendent P. Heffernan.

The visitor and his party, which included Mr. N. C. Tritton, his private secretary, and Mr. R. Maxwell, of Australia House, London, accompanied by the Irish representatives, drove to the Shelbourne Hotel. In a short time Mr. O'Kelly went to his office in Merrion street, and a few minutes afterwards Mr. Menzies, with Mr. Walshe and Mr. Belton came to Government Buildings, where he was conducted to the Taoiseach's apartments. They had a talk before having lunch in an adjoining room, with Mr. O'Kelly and Mr. P. J. Ruttledge also present.

After lunch the Australian Premier inspected the interior of Leinster House. In the vestibule he met Mr. James M. Dillon, T.D.

It is understood that Mr. Menzies will be the guest at a further luncheon to-day before he leaves for England.

ROME REPORT

COUP D'ETAT IN IRAQ

MILITARY-NATIONALIST NEW GOVERNMENT

ASSOCIATED PRESS.

ROME, Friday.

The newspaper, Il Messagero, today published a report dated from Baghdad that a coup d'état of military elements and Nationalist extremists had overthrown the Iraki Government of Seyid Taha Al-Hashimi, and that a new Government had not yet been formed.

The Mir Abdul Ilah, Regent for young King Feisal II., had taken refuge at Bassorah, and the Chamber of Deputies had been dissolved, the report adds.

It was learned in London that clarification of the situation in Iraq was still awaited to determine what the attitude of the British Government would be toward the reported coup.

Preliminary information received is that one Rashid Ali, a Nationalist and military leader, seized power during the absence of the Premier, Al-Hashimi, and his action seems clearly unconstitutional.

The dispatch to the newspaper Il Messagero said that "the movement has a clearly anti-British character, caused by continuous British meddling in Irak's internal affairs and foreign policy."

TWO ITALIAN DESTROYERS SCUTTLED

Five Italian destroyers have been sunk in the Red Sea during the last few days.

The British Commander-in-Chief, East Indies, in a communiqué issued last night, stated that the Pantera and Tigre had been scuttled by their crews off the coast of Saduarabia, and that another destroyer left in a sinking condition on Thursday has now sunk. A number of Italian prisoners were landed.

On Thursday it was reported that British naval aircraft had sunk one destroyer and left another in a sinking condition, and they sank one on Tuesday and another in October.

The Italians have thus lost six of the seven destroyers they had in this area when they entered the war, and in all operations have lost 18 destroyers, and another two are probably sunk.

MORE U.S. AID FOR BRITAIN

MANY MILLIONS FOR NEW SHIPS

ASSOCIATED PRESS.

WASHINGTON, Friday.

President Roosevelt announced to-day he had allocated another $500,000,000 (£125,000,000) from the £1,750,000,000 British Aid Fund for 212 new merchantmen, and about 50 or 60 new shipways.

He also authorised the expenditure of another £125,000,000 for existing military equipment to be turned over to the nations resisting aggression.

The President disclosed that if no fighting was taking place in the Red Sea the United States might remove that area from the list of combat zones and would permit American vessels to carry cargoes there. Such a step might be taken within two or three days.

MILWAUKEE STRIKE

WASHINGTON, Friday.

President Roosevelt declared at his Press conference to-day that he regarded the strike at the Allis Chalmers Factory at Milwaukee, which was working on Anglo-American defence orders, as a very bad situation, and added that something had got to be done about it.

When asked whether any Communist activity was prevalent in the strike, he replied in the affirmative.

DR. WELLINGTON KOO MAY BE AMBASSADOR

Doctor V. K. Wellington Koo, outstanding Chinese diplomat, will, it is understood, succeed Doctor Quo Tai Chi as Chinese Ambassador in London. No announcement, however, Reuter learns, can be made until the choice has been finally accepted by the British Government.

ONE OUNCE TEA RATION NOW

REDUCED TO HALF-OUNCE SHORTLY

The Order fixing the tea ration at one ounce per person per week will come into operation to-day.

The reduction to half an ounce will not operate until the Minister makes an Order to that effect.

This will probably be announced shortly.

U.S. REJECTION OF AXIS PROTEST

MR. CORDELL HULL'S STERN REPLY

PRESS ASSOCIATION TELEGRAM.

WASHINGTON, Friday.

IT was confirmed to-day that the United States has rejected the German and Italian protests against the seizures of ships, and has refused the demands for the release of the ships and crews.

The State Department announced to-day that the seizures were necessary to protect the vessels in United States harbours from sabotage, and it has made a public reply to the two protests.

Mr. Cordell Hull (Secretary of State) expressed surprise at the "extreme assertions and demands" of the Axis Powers. He said that the German Embassy failed to support its contention of violations of international law, or of the Treaty of Friendship and Commerce, between the United States and Germany. "I know of no principle of international law which permits masters and crews of vessels of a country which has sought refuge in, or entered, the ports of another country, to commit acts of destruction in disregard of the local law and hospitality which they have been permitted to enjoy," he told the German Embassy.

Mr. Cordell Hull further declared that there was no provision in the treaty "between our two countries which lends even the colour of support to any such argument."

"UNTHINKABLE"

"It would, indeed, be unthinkable," he said, "if any civilised nation would become a party to a treaty containing any such provision, or that it would subscribe to any so-called principle of international law which would permit foreign vessels to be brought to its harbours and roadsteads, and there wilfully damaged and wrecked in violation of any law, to the detriment of navigation, and even the safety of its harbours, without restraint or hindrance by the local sovereign."

The auxiliary machinery of one of the German ships was smashed, and the propelling machinery deliberately wrecked, he said.

"If the scuttling and burning of ships in other harbours on this Continent may be regarded as indicative of what might be expected in our ports, it is difficult to see how your Government could expect this Government to be oblivious to the situation presented."

REPLY TO ITALY

Replying to the Italian Note, Mr. Cordell Hull cited the United States law justifying the action of seizing Italian ships and arresting members of the crew when it was deemed necessary to protect a vessel from damage or injury, or prevent damage or injury in any harbour or water of the United States.

The rejection of the Axis protests in such clear, sharp terms is very welcome in Washington. The United States case, it is considered, has not been put a fraction too high. It is thought that the sharpness of the rebuke must inevitably increase German-American tension. But, while there is again talk of severance of diplomatic relations, it is still felt that, for the time being, the Administration is more likely to leave such a course to the Axis.

HINT OF REPRISALS

The Berlin correspondent of the Tribune de Geneve, quoted by the Vichy News Agency to-day, says:—Germany may take reprisals for the seizing of her ships. Circles close to the Government point out that American interests are considerable, not only in Germany, but in German-controlled countries.

ITALIAN NAVAL ATTACHE ACCUSED

WASHINGTON, Friday.

President Roosevelt stated to-day that it seems at present that a great deal of the sabotage of Italian merchantmen was on the orders of Admiral Alberto Lais, the Italian Naval Attaché in Washington, whose recall has already been demanded by the United States Government.—(P.A. Telegram.)

'PLANES COLLIDE IN AUSTRALIA

ACCIDENT ABOVE GOVERNMENT HOUSE

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

SYDNEY, Friday.

Two R.A.A.F. 'planes crashed as the result of a collision over Government House, Canberra, this afternoon. One of the occupants was killed; two others escaped by parachute.

Lord Gowrie, the Governor-General, and Mr. Fadden, the Acting Prime Minister of Australia, raced from Government House to one of the 'planes. The pilot landed beside them in the grounds.

The other 'plane was found in a pine wood by Air Marshal Sir Charles Burnett, Chief of Staff of the R.A.A.F. The occupant was dead.

Other members of the crews of the two 'planes escaped uninjured.

MATSUOKA AGAIN IN BERLIN

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

BERLIN, Friday.

Mr. Matsuoka, the Japanese Foreign Minister, arrived here from Rome to-day and saw Herr Hitler for a talk, says the German News Agency. Herr Ribbentrop was also present.

When Mr. Matsuoka left Italy to-day he expressed his conviction in a telegram to Mussolini that under "your leadership the great Italian nation will emerge victorious from this war."

Matsouka leaves to-morrow evening for Tokyo, via Moscow, adds the Associated Press.

FROM "THE TIMES"

(BY SPECIAL ARRANGEMENT.)

BENGHAZI

The Times in a leading article to-day says:—

After the series of brilliant victories at sea and on land—land victories which are even now being relentlessly exploited in East Africa—the news of the abandonment of Benghazi has created a disagreeable surprise, though the public is fully confident that the decision taken by our Commander-in-Chief was correct and strong-minded. If we had lost a large force in defending the town there would, indeed, have been some cause for uneasiness. As things stand, however, its loss constitutes a moral rather than a material set-back, especially in view of the announcement that it had not been practicable to use it as a port.

Yet, the fact should be faced that the Germans dispose of a very considerable armoured force in Libya, and that some further withdrawal in face of their bold and violent onslaught may be found necessary. The German strategy has been ingenious as well as bold. The enemy has made good use of the Sicilian bridge across the narrows of the Mediterranean.

General Wavell has made a number of strategic withdrawals before, and some of them have been criticised, but it will be admitted that his judgment has invariably turned out to have been correct, and that the territory abandoned to the enemy has not profited him. Now we are facing the advance in strength of a more serious enemy, who has to be very carefully watched and thoroughly estimated; nor is our action in this theatre of the war isolated. It represents but one feature of a many-sided situation which must be viewed as a whole. There is no reason for lack of confidence as to the final outcome of this German intervention in North Africa.

RAID ON WESTERN ENGLAND

'PLANES BELIEVED DOWN

Two, and possibly a third, German 'planes were brought down in raids over Western England during the night, according to the Press Association.

Big chandelier flares were released over the area, and from the loud zooming of engines it appeared that a large number of 'planes were engaged in the raid. As the night wore on the attack became less intense.

London had an alarm, but the "raiders passed" signal was sounded without any incident being reported.

Night fighters were in action. There was a heavy barrage from ground batteries.

Bristol was raided for four hours on Thursday night. Some damage was done by high explosive bombs, and a number of fires were started by incendiaries.

Brest, where the Scharnhorst and Gneisenau are sheltering, was again attacked by the Royal Air Force on Thursday night, says a British Air Ministry communiqué.

"Much cloud and haze over the target made the observation of results difficult, but heavy bombs were seen to fall across the dry dock, and several fires were started in the port.

"Attacks on a small scale were made on oil storage tanks at Rotterdam and on the docks at Ostend.

"From these operations four of our aircraft are missing."

APPROPRIATION ACCOUNTS

The report of the Auditor-General on the Appropriation Accounts for the year 1939-40, issued yesterday, indicates that remissions under the Revenue Acts during the year were £5,658, as compared with £4,611 in the previous year. Of the total amount of a grant of £500 towards expenses of caring for the survivors of the Athenia, the expenditure certified was £348. Seed wheat which was proved to be below germination standard incurred a loss of £896. The wheat, which amounted to 25,000 barrels, was purchased from Sweden. The cost of migration schemes from congested areas in the west of Leinster from inception in 1937-38 to 31st March, 1940, was £44,229. Actual expenditure in connection with the World's Fair, New York, is shown as £38,558. The total cost in connection with the Glasgow Exhibition was £17,206, while the receipts were £4,841.

Initial payments in connection with warlike stores made during the year on contracts with continental firms amounted to £44,000. Delivery of these was still overdue. The report states that, as delivery is not expected under present circumstances, it has been deemed advisable to relieve the vote of the amounts advanced until such time as the position is clarified, and they have been transferred to the suspense account.

TEA RATION TO BE REDUCED

Widespread Economy in Use of Bread Urged

THE tea ration of one ounce per week, which comes into operation to-day, will be further reduced to half an ounce, Mr. Lemass, Minister for Supplies, announced in the Dail yesterday.

He said that their future allocation by the British Tea Control of only 25 per cent. of their normal purchases was attributed to shipping difficulties and loss of supplies, but he was unable to accept that as an adequate explanation.

He denied rumours that the shortage in petrol was due to any difficulties between the Government and the oil companies, and, regarding flour supplies, said that rationing of bread was undesirable, but it was necessary that there should be widespread economy in the use of bread by the people.

Dr. T. F. O'HIGGINS (F.G., Leix-Offaly), speaking on the motion, said that the House was adjourning for a very considerable period at a time when, if the statements made by the head of the Government were to be taken seriously, the people of the country were facing something equivalent to starvation; at a time when the Government considered the position so grave that tea rationing on a very severe scale was necessary; at a time when the petrol scarcity had dislocated the commercial transport of the country, and at a time when the unemployment position was not so much a question of the tens of thousands out of work, but rather of the hundreds of thousands who could only look on their livelihood as a type which they could own from hour to hour; at a time when the greatest industry was practically non-existent through the rampant and rather rapid spread of foot-and-mouth disease.

The House was dispersing without any real opportunity being given to the representatives of the people to discuss any of these matters. At the present moment the people were in a state of absolute confusion of mind and of suppressed anger.

RATIONING SCHEME

He believed that a grave mistake was made in the announcement of a national rationing scheme. If he had been the Minister he would have announced a month or six weeks ago that rationing of food might become a necessity, and that in order to prepare for such a contingency should it unfortunately arise, he desired every householder to fill up a registration card. The announcement of the rationing scheme in advance had resulted in unrestricted buying by the public in the interval before the scheme became operative. He had been informed that the amount of tea purchased from merchants in the last month was greater than that purchased for any month since last June. Would the Minister now consider the advisability—considering the magnificent response they had got to every appeal made to the public—of asking those people who had laid in stores to return them to the merchants; or, alternatively, to disclose to the Minister that they had them, so that they would not require to be put on the rationing list until those stores were considerably depleted.

In the mind of the ordinary man in the street all this ruthless scale of rationing was linked up with the Taoiseach's statement that we were being blockaded by both sides in the present emergency. If the Taoiseach had made an indiscreet speech, perhaps in a panic or based on incorrect information, was it not his responsibility rather than to continue the harm to say that his impression on that particular date was that that was so rather than come into the House with the twaddle they had listened to.

THE "BLOCKADE"

Dr. O'HIGGINS said he believed that the present blockade was imposed either by the Irish Government or by the Irish merchants. There was held up to the people a picture of famine at a time when the bottleneck of the Port of Dublin was glutted with goods which merchants would not remove. That meant that ships laden with supplies for Eire could not get into the country because of our own neglect here.

Mr. LEMASS—That is not correct, and the Deputy knows it is not correct. That allegation was made, and on examination found to be entirely incorrect. It was repudiated by the traffic managers of the shipping firms supplying this country.

Dr. O'HIGGINS said that the tonnage at the port had trebled and quadrupled since the time the Minister had referred to, and whatever bottleneck there was at the port three months ago it had narrowed down by two-thirds what it was then. If his statement was incorrect he would be the first to withdraw it. He had been asked to visit the site this afternoon, and he was going.

Mr. LEMASS—It is true of complaints made that some merchants were slow in removing goods from the docks.

Dr. O'HIGGINS—Well, if there was a hold-up, and it has got to be looked into, was it not well that the statement was made in good faith?

THE PETROL "HOLD-UP"

The motor trade in Dublin said that an arrangement for an adequate supply of petrol could have been made but for the Department of Supplies. Others said that the supply could not be obtained because of the Irish petrol companies. His information was that the hold-up was due to a disagreement between the Irish oil companies over the establishment of an oil refinery. There was an arrangement at the start of the war for the supply of 80 per cent. of pre-war supplies of petrol. At the end of last year it was stated that this supply could not be maintained, and an arrangement was made for a supply of 50 per cent. of our requirements. Was the present position that we would get 50 per cent. of our requirements?

Mr. S. LEMASS replied that that was what he understood.

Dr. O'HIGGINS criticised the allocation of the available supplies, and said that most doctors had been cut down by 90 per cent. in their petrol allowance.

Mr. W. NORTON (Labour, Carlow-Kildare) asked for information on the food situation. It was clearly not possible now to get 700,000 acres under wheat this year. If we were going to have a loaf with a barley and oats admixture this should be introduced now, without waiting for July or August. He feared the Taoiseach might be right when he said there was a danger of starvation in the country. The quantity of land under cultivation was very small.

MR. LEMASS'S REPLY

Mr. LEMASS, replying to the debate, said that if the public were confused it was not the fault of the Government, who tried for months past to impress on the public what was coming inevitably. A large part of Deputy O'Higgins's speech was due to his unwillingness to face facts.

It was true that last July, when faced with the danger of invasion, he advised the storage of certain commodities by merchants and the public. He advised them to buy flour. There was no specific reference to tea. The public response was small. About a week's supply of flour and a fortnight's supply of sugar were bought extra. In fact, the public thought first of tea, though it was not specially mentioned, and that was the cause why he had previously made the wholesalers register and had allowed them to supply merchants with only 75% of their normal supplies of tea. That would prevent tea from being hoarded by rich people. He had explained already why it became necessary to restrict the sale of tea in September. When the British informed him that it would be possible only to supply 50 per cent. of normal requirements, it was decided to restrict the sale of tea to one ounce per person.

FUTURE ALLOCATION

He regretted to have to inform the House that he had received a telephonic communication on the evening before to the effect that a communication was being sent informing him that in future our allocation of tea would be only 25 per cent. of our normal purchases. The allocation which was now being made to this country would be on the basis that we receive only one quarter. Therefore, a further reduction in the quantity of tea supplied to householders would be necessary, and the tea ration would have to be reduced from one ounce per week per person to half an ounce per week per person.

"These reductions in the quantity of tea allocated to us by the British Tea Controller," said Mr. Lemass, "have been attributed by them to shipping difficulties and the loss of supplies. I am no longer able to accept this explanation as adequate. There is no doubt, of course, that there have been shipping losses and destruction of supplies, but I am unable to accept them as an adequate explanation for the curtailment of the quantities of tea allowed to us. This is due to the fact that, while our allocations have been reduced in successive steps to 75 per cent., to 50 per cent., to 25 per cent., and now, apparently, to 25 per cent., allocations made by the British Tea Controller to wholesalers in Great Britain have not been reduced. Great Britain's cousumption is more than 400,000,000 lbs. of tea per annum. The saving of tea effected by the British Tea Controller through the reduction of 25 per cent. in our allocation amounts to less than half a million lbs. per month. This quantity is so insignificant in relation to the total consumption of tea in Great Britain, that some other explanation, other than that given to us, must be advanced to justify the action taken.

"It is necessary to bear in mind in this connection that it was on the proposition of the British Government—a proposition put forward by them in their own interests—that the Government of this country agreed to purchase all our tea through the British Tea Controller, they agreeing on their side to give us 100 per cent. of our normal purchases. While we recognise that circumstances might arise which might make it impossible for the United Kingdom to give us our full supplies, we cannot agree that the reduction of our allocation to 25 per cent., while their's remains at 85 per cent., is reasonable.

RUMOURS OF HOARDING

"I do not propose to speculate as to the possibly real explanation of this rapid reduction in our tea supplies, but it is clear that the explanation given to us is inadequate. The form and manner in which representations must be made to the British Government in connection with this matter are to be determined by the Government, but I think it is desirable that the House and the country should know the situation which has arisen."

He was glad Deputy O'Higgins had referred to stocks of tea that might be held by individuals, because it was desirable that the public should be fully informed concerning these rumours. There was a real danger that, faced as we were with a situation in which there would be an absolute scarcity of tea, and with a possible situation in which there would be no tea, if there were a number of unfounded rumours in circulation of certain individuals in the community having large stocks of tea, they could easily lead to a situation in which the rumours would be directed to a certain individual, with the danger that they could lead to breaches and disturbances of the peace. He thought the facts proved that there could be no substantial quantities of tea held by individuals in the country, and he appealed to deputies, if they agreed with him, to use their personal influence to quash these rumours.

PETROL POSITION

With regard to petrol, there were a number of rumours in circulation, all eminating from the same source. He knew the source. Those rumours seemed to substantiate that when he summoned a meeting of the motor traders and specifically denied each of these rumours, he felt they were not satisfied. He then summoned them to a meeting with the oil companies, and there again had the rumours enumerated, and they were denied by the oil companies. The rumours were to the effect that there was some difficulty between the Government and the oil companies, which was preventing us getting petrol.

"I know of no such difficulty," said Mr. Lemass. "There is no question of a bargain which the Government refuses to make with the companies." He added that the oil companies told him they hoped to give us 50 per cent. of our normal requirements this year. Up to the oment they were not supplying 50 p. cent., and, in fact, the Government had been distributing more petrol than was coming in.

WHEAT SUPPLIES

It now was evident that they would be four week's short of the requirements of wheat necessary to keep them going till the end of September. They could easily make that good if they got widespread economy in the use of bread. If at all possible, the rationing of bread was to be avoided, but it could be avoided only if they got a sufficiency of other cereals to mix with the flour. They were not going to get a sufficiency of wheat from the next harvest, and they would have to get oats and barley to make up the deficiency.

Mr. P. BELTON (Indt., Dublin) said that nothing less than a million acres of those cereals would be sufficient to save them from hunger.

The debate was concluded by Mr. Hughes (F.G., Carlow), and the Dail adjourned till 3 p.m. on Wednesday, 23rd April.

MICROBE OF POVERTY

DAIL REFERENCE TO MALNUTRITION

When the debate was resumed in the Dail yesterday on the estimates for Local Government, Mr. McGOVERN (F.G., Cavan) complained of the slippery condition of the roads in his area, and said that they were a danger to horse traffic. The County Surveyor in Cavan had told him that there was no snag in the use of white sand, and he appealed to the Minister to give the question consideration.

Mr. COGAN (Independent, Wicklow) said that the only solution to the housing problem was for the Government to provide money free of interest for the erection of houses for the working class.

MALNUTRITION

Mr. R. MULCAHY (F.G., Dublin, N.E.) said that the disease most likely to affect them at the present time—and one that was not touched on by the Department—was the disease of malnutrition, arising from, and enormously exaggerated by, the poverty of the people. The worst microbe they were likely to have in the City of Dublin, or that they had at the moment, was the microbe of poverty. He urged the Minister to take serious notice of the suggestions now being made public, that the Department had a responsibility to look systematically into the whole question of malnutrition.

The MINISTER FOR LOCAL GOVERNMENT (Mr. P. J. Ruttledge), replying, said that the Department had been advocating the establishment, by local authorities, of sanatoria to deal with advanced cases of tuberculosis in their own counties. It seemed that people with the disease in its early stages did not want to be treated in their own areas. He denied that the Department had not stood up to the architects, and instanced a case where a hospital would have cost nearly £50,000 (about £1,600 per bed) if it had been allowed to go through. The Department had stood up against positions like that, and this sometimes caused the delays of which it had been accused.

RESEARCH WORK

He did not regard the present time as opportune for the endowment of hospitals. If that had been done four or five years ago the cost would have been £3,000,000. At the moment it would be about £6,000,000, proving that these costs were fluctuating considerably. No request had been received from the hospitals for the endowment to be done now.

As regards the diphtheria serum, a Research Council was set up in 1937, which had distributed in all something like £22,000 in grants for research to date. The persons receiving these grants reported the progress of their work to the Research Council, which, in turn, reported bi-annually to the Local Government Department. The Department were aware that the work was being carried out, but they would wait for the report of the Research Council on it. That position was perfectly understood by the people working on the diphtheria serum. While nobody could take exception to this matter being raised by Deputy Cosgrave in the way he had done it in the House, he did think exception should be taken to bringing the people engaged in that serious work into the public eye and bandying them about in the newspapers.

Mr. Cosgrave said he hoped the Minister did not suspect that the gentlemen concerned were responsible for the raising of the matter.

Mr. Ruttledge said he knew they were not. In fact, Dr. O'Mara came to him personally about the matter. He was very hurt about it. He thought it was very unfortunate that there should have been a letter signed "M.D.", because if the person concerned were a doctor he would have understood the position that it was not for the Department to comment on this work, although they were very pleased to see the progress that had been made.

A BALANCED DIET

On the question of malnutrition, he had nothing to guide him but the reports of the County Medical Officers of Health. He understood from them that very often malnutrition was due to improper diet. Some of these officers were doing valuable education work, and it was hoped to centralise that work to get the consensus of opinion of County Medical Officers of Health as to a proper balanced diet and issue leaflets and carry on a propaganda campaign.

He would not feel that if, as a result of the emergency, they got an abnormal unemployment problem, that the burden of the relief work should be thrown on to the local authorities. Where relief works had to be carried out to meet cases of hardship the Central Fund was contributing 50 per cent. of the cost.

The estimate was agreed to.

Tá áitín darb ainm Baile Fionn láimh le Móin Ráta sa Laoighis-tír; tá Baile Dubh i bPort Láirge agus Baile Dubh eile i n-aice Trágha Lí. Ní'l an dara baile dubh, deirtear liom, comh dubh ar fad leis an chéad ceann. Tá áit dorcha eile i gCill Coinnigh ar a dtugtar Ballyfoyle, nó Baile an Phuill. An té a shroicheann an caisleán seo i lár na h-oidhche, tuiteann isteach sa pholl agus is annamh a mhaireann sé tar éis na timpiste. Tá tobar beag fíor-uisce i lár an bhaile agus an té a imthigheann go dtí an tobar ar lorg uisce, deirtear go bhfuil imthighthe "go tóin Baile an Phuill."

Agus mar sin de.

Agus (stuaic an scéil!) tá Baile Glas ann láimh le Clár Chloinne Muiris i gContae Mhuigheo. Gach doras sa bhaile, tá sé glas agus tá glas air.

Glánabaile: Kay'n Bayrla ar Baile Glas?

Mise: Ballyglass. Mar dubhairt mé thuas, tá sé i n-aice Clár Cloinne Muiris.

Léighim, forcha agus freisin, go bhfuil sráidbhaile comhgarach don Uaimh dá ngairmtear i mBéarla Seáin "Wilkinstown" agus i nGaedhilg Pádraig "Baile Uilcín." Cé'n brígh atá le "uilcín"? Droch-duine atá ar beagán toirt? Má's eadh, cé'n t-uilcín atá i gceist?

I gcionn míosa nó mar sin beidh focal le rádh agam i dtaobh Baile an Lóibín i gContae Lughbhaidh.

DIOCESAN SECONDARY SCHOOL FOR GIRLS

An interesting Irish programme was presented yesterday by pupils of the Diocesan Secondary School for Girls, Adelaide road, at a ceilidhe held in the school.

Two plays written by Mrs. de Valera, were features of the afternoon, one of them of a historical character, being entitled "Niall and Gormlaith," and the other "An T-ubhall Ordha."

"The Gospel of St. John" was yet another play, the theme of which was taken from a history book by Miss Casserley, M.A., a member of the school staff, and translated into Irish.

The costumes all historically accurate, were devised and made by the pupils themselves

Irish dancing by the girls was performed during the intervals.

Mrs. de Valera, who was among those present, was received by the Headmistress (Miss Latimer, B.A.) and by the Rev. W. J. Mayne.

BEET FACTORY ROBBERY

MAN AND WOMAN CHARGED

WHAT POLICE SEARCH REVEALED

From Our Correspondent.

TUAM, Friday.

Charged at Tuam District Court to-day with breaking into the offices of the Tuam Beet Factory on the night of 9th to 10th January last, and stealing £1,757 1s. 3d., Martin Conneely, Athenry road, Tuam, was further remanded in custody to Galway District Court next Thursday by District Justice Sean MacGoilliarnath.

Mrs. Kathleen Conneely, wife of the accused man, was charged with receiving £101, the property of the Sugar Company, knowing it to have been stolen.

Mr. Sean Collins, paymaster, Tuam Beet Factory, said that he drew £1,800 from the Bank of Ireland, Tuam, on January 9, made up of 100 £5 notes, 1,077 £1 notes, 200 10s. notes, £120 in silver and £3 in coppers. That evening he made up the money in pay envelopes and put it into the safe. He locked up both safe and office door, and all windows were locked. On the following morning when he reached the office he found the safe door practically wide open, and it had been drilled where the lock was. The money in the safe was gone, except £43 6s., which was in a canvas bag

Detective Sergeant Keating, Galway, stated that on March 15 he asked Conneely and his wife, who were going towards the railway station, to accompany him to the barracks. He asked Conneely to produce any money he had, and Conneely took out a wallet in which was £4 4s. and said: "That is my own money. I got paid yesterday, and my wife gave me a pound on the way to the station to get the tickets." He asked Mrs. Conneely for the bag she had in her hand and also asked her how much money was in it. She said £9. He found only £8 in notes, and she said that that was right, she had £9 and gave 10s. to her sister.

RESULT OF SEARCH

When Mrs. Conneely was searched by a woman searcher a bundle containing 101 single pound notes was found on her. Conneely afterwards admitted that the money belonged to the Tuam Beet Company.

Detective Guard M. J. Walsh, Galway, a member of the search party in Conneely's house, Athenry road, Tuam, on March 15th, said that Detective Sergeant Noonan and Detective Guard Diffley found several bundles of notes in the house and seven rounds of .45 revolver ammunition, and one bullet of a smaller type. He also found a small parcel containing five detonators and a bunch of keys.

Conneely was remanded to Galway on Thursday next, and Mrs. Conneely was allowed out on bail in her own and her brother-in-law's security of £100.

ALLEGED POISONOUS TINNED FISH

FIFTEEN PERSONS BRING ACTIONS

In the Dublin Circuit (Civil) Court yesterday, before Judge Davitt, fifteen persons alleged they were poisoned by eating tinned salmon, and sued Messrs. Pelling, Stanley and Co., Ltd., 6 Foster place, Dublin, for damages.

The plaintiffs are:—Mrs. Winifred Smith, 4 Mount Drummond avenue, Harold's Cross, Dublin, and five members of her family; also Margaret Martin, 46 Chelmsford road, Ranelagh, Dublin, and Evelyn, Austin and Cyril Martin, and Ita O'Brien, same address; Henry Kealy, James Kealy, John O'Neill, Crosslow, Tullow, Co. Carlow and Christopher Fogarty, 203 Tyrconnell road, Inchicore, Dublin.

Judge Davitt granted applications for discovery of documents, but adjourned the applications for discovery made on behalf of the Martins and O'Brien pending preparations of interrogatories.

In their statements of claim the plaintiffs alleged that each of them consumed a quantity of salmon distributed by the defendants, who negligently permitted the salmon to be contaminated by poisonous matter, and by reason of these facts plaintiffs became violently ill and suffered severely from food poisoning.

The defendants denied they are manufacturers or distributors of the salmon, and also denied other allegations in the statements of claim.

Mr. M. J. Ryan, K.C., and Mr. Patrick Bourke (instructed by Mr. Patrick D. O'Grady) represented the Martins and O'Brien; Mr. E. M. Wood (instructed by Messrs. Gore-Grimes) was for the Smiths, and Mr. Noel McDonald (instructed by Messrs. Hickey and O'Reilly (appeared for the Kealys, O'Neill and Fogarty.

Mr. Cecil Lavery, K.C., and Mr. F. G. O Budd (instructed by Messrs. J. L. Scallan) were for the defendants.

DUBLIN DISTRICT COURT

ATTEMPTED MURDER CHARGE

MAN REMANDED IN DUBLIN

Before Mr. Hannan, in the Dublin District Court yesterday, Francis Mooney, no fixed address, was further remanded on a charge of the attempted murder of William Reynolds, C.Y.M.S. Lodge, Philipsburgh avenue, Dublin, by shooting at him with a revolver on February 4. He was charged, in addition, with having the revolver and ammunition with intent to endanger life, and with the assault of Christopher Aylmer on January 24 by presenting the revolver at him, and also with the assault of three other people by the same means.

Thomas Kavanagh, Mountjoy place, told how he had seen Mooney arguing with a girl outside a dance hall in Parnell square. The girl moved away and told him that Mooney had a gun. Mooney produced a gun, and told him to move on, and that he was a detective. He then met Reynolds, and they proceeded to Bolton street, where they again saw Mooney. Kavanagh said: "You are the man who assaulted me." Rooney drew his revolver and fired two shots. Kavanagh shouted to Reynolds to take cover, and a third shot was fired.

The case was adjourned until next Tuesday.

Mr. J. A. Geary (Chief State Solicitor's Office) prosecuted; and Mr. Herman Good, solicitor, defended.

FAILED TO REGISTER

Before Mr. Lennon, Lionel Antony Kerwood, a student at Steevens's Hospital, with an address at Holland Park, London, was fined £10 for failing to register as a British subject under the Emergency Powers Order, 1939.

Kerwood said that he did not think it was necessary to register.

Mr. Humphries (Chief State Solicitor's Office) prosecuted; Mr. de Vere White defended.

ABBEY PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH

On Monday evening next, at 8 o'clock Rossini's "Stabat Mater" (English words) will be sung by an augmented choir. This work is not heard very often nowadays, probably on account of the difficulty of the solo work. The soloists will be Miss Renée Flynn, Miss Cynthia Flynn, Mr. William F. Watt and Mr. Mervyn Bell, with Mr. William S. Greig at the organ.

Toomey, Sub-Sheriff for County Wicklow. Superintendent P. Cronin, Bray, said that on March 13 he told the accused man, who was then on remand on one charge, that there would be a number of other charges against him. The hearing was adjourned to Arklow District Court on Wednesday next.

QUEEN'S INSTITUTE OF NURSING

ANNUAL MEETING IN BELFAST

From Our Correspondent.

BELFAST, Friday.

The annual meeting of the Queen's Institute of District Nursing was held in Belfast yesterday.

The President, the Duchess of St. Albans, said that the struggle to carry on had become more intense, but the Institute was extremely important, and every effort should be made to maintain it. They wanted to open more and more districts. Much valuable work had been done in helping evacuees at Dun Laoghaire and in reception areas.

The balance sheets for the Eire and Northern Ireland Executive Committees were read by Mr. C. A. Pim and Professor Gregg Wilson, respectively, the latter paying a high tribute to the work done in Eire.

Lady O'Loghlen, moving the adoption of the reports, said that finances were mainly satisfactory, considering that the subscribers had fallen away.

Lady Londonderry said that the funds were totally inadequate to meet the great work of the nurses.

GARDEN SCHEME

Lady Powerscourt and Lady Pownall advanced suggestions for the improvement of the garden scheme. Miss Murson proposed that the Institute was worthy of support, which was seconded by Mrs. Teacher.

Lady Moore said that the nurses work was greatly appreciated in the desolate areas of Connemara and the western isles.

Sir Arthur Quekett also spoke.

Miss E. F. Colburn, Irish Superintendent, presented the reports for Eire and Northern Ireland, which showed that a great deal of work had been done by the Institute at Dun Laoghaire in disembarking and caring for evacuees. There were 187 districts affiliated to the Institute in Eire, and the total number of nurses there was 221. In the North 54 associations were affiliated, and 26 were organised on the provident system.

DESTRUCTION IN CATTLE MARKET

EXTRAORDINARY CASE

(BEFORE MR. McCARTHY.)

Two boys, aged 13½ and 12½, were remanded for a week in the Juvenile Court yesterday, where they were charged with the malicious damage of property, estimated at £56, in the Dublin Cattle Market on March 24.

One of the boys, in a statement to the Guards, described how they had gone into an office and found a hammer. They broke the window of another office and found a hatchet; then they broke windows in 27 offices. They went to the refreshment room, made a hole in the roof and went inside, where they smashed plates, bottles of Bovril and coffee, and broke up cheese and cornbeef.

Mr. Michael Lynch, Superintendent at the Cattle Markets, said that the place looked as if a maniac had run amok. The wire-glass in the offices was broken, the electric meter was burst open and fuses and switches smashed. Not a pane of glass was left in the weigh-house, which had been built only in the last six months.

Mr. J. J. Walsh, solicitor, appeared for the Dublin Corporation, and Mr. Liam Trant McCarthy appeared for one of the boys.

SCHOOLS' GAELIC DRAMA FESTIVAL

LAST NIGHT'S AWARDS

Adjudicating last night in the special competition for Gaelic League branches at the Schools' Gaelic Drama Festival, Padraig O Broithe regretted that the League branches had not backed up their teams by better attendance during the contest. As he took care to emphasise, the audience is as essential to successful drama as are plays, actors and production.

Last night's entry in this competition, "Misneach" (A Saidléar), too aptly illustrated the need for new plays and new treatment, referred to the previous night in another competition by Seamus Philmot. Even the fluency of the Pearse Players, Domhnach Padraig, County Meath, could not make a winner of this group. The shield was awarded to the Dublin Ard-Chraobh ("Geamaireacht Droiched an Diabhail") (84), with Craobh Moibhi ("Ruaidhri Reamh-Raidhte") (72) coming second. The shield was presented by Padraig T. Breathnach, D.Ph.

In a spirited contest for the Technical Schools' Cup between Tuam ("An Udhacht"), Parnell square ("Ag Suirghe leis an mBaintreabhach") and Marino ("Na Cruiteachain"), the last-mentioned group of boys and girls made a popular win. Here, again, choice of a good play had its share in success. There is talent in this young group, and this first success of theirs ought to spur them to still better effort. Presenting this cup, Micheal O Foghludha defended Dublin Gaelic Leaguers against what he thought not quite fair criticism.

The gold medals for the best individual performances went to Mairín Ní Meadhra, Marino, and Nioclas O Cinneide—"Fear na bh Feisteas"—in the Ard-Chraobh. The adjudicators found difficulty in choosing between this player and the actor in the saint's part.

The festival continues to-day and concludes to-night.

The death of Herr Louis Werner, a well-known Belfast musician and the veteran organist of Holy Cross Church, Ardoyne, occurred on Thursday night at his residence, Antrim road. Although in his 85th year, Mr. Werner had retained remarkable health and vitality.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

A FORM OF PRAYER

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

Sir,—I have been given a copy of a prayer authorised to be used in all churches and chapels of Ireland on Sunday, the 5th of November, 1865, "for protection from the plague amongst cattle, and from the cholera." I give the prayer in full, both as a matter of historical interest and also as suitable for using in our churches next Sunday. The latter part, which refers to the cholera in 1865, may be used with reference to an even more serious pestilence than cholera with which many lands have been smitten to-day.—Yours, etc.,

Arthur Dublin.

The Palace, Shrewsbury road, Dublin, April 3rd, 1941.

A FORM OF PRAYER TO ALMIGHTY GOD.

O Lord God Almighty, whose are the Cattle on a thousand hills, and in whose hand is the breath of every living thing, look down, we beseech Thee, in compassion upon Thy servants who are exposed to the danger of a grievous murrain among our herds and flocks. We acknowledge our transgressions, which worthily deserve Thy chastisement, and our sin is ever before us; and in humble penitence we come to seek Thy aid. In the midst of Judgment, do Thou, O Lord, remember Mercy for Thy Son Jesus Christ's sake; avert, we pray Thee, this plague by Thy word of Power, and save that provision which Thou has, in Thy goodness, granted for our sustenance.

Defend us also, gracious Lord, from the Pestilence with which many lands have been smitten; let it not enter our borders, and shield our homes from its ravages; so shall we offer unto Thee the sacrifice of praise and thanksgiving for these Thy acts of Providence over us, through Jesus Christ our Lord. Amen.

THE HIBERNIAN ACADEMY

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES

Sir,—Mr. Ganly's letter renews the hoary controversy between artists and critics. Whistler once observed "Art happens," and a visit to our annual exhibitions leaves the conviction that it does not happen to many. Now who is to decide what is mere painting and what is art? Not the artists themselves, for I have seldom heard one artist speak well of another's work, and the task cannot be left to the general public for its judgment is too often befogged by the "pretty" picture, or the "photographic" portrait.

I submit, then, for want of better, that the task must be left to persons of some æsthetic knowledge, perception, and the gift of clear expression, and such persons are almost invariably to be found among the writers.—Yours, etc.,

"Art Lover."

Dublin, April 3rd, 1941.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

Sir,—I see that Mr. Patrick Kavanagh has been reprimanded for saying what he thinks about the pictures at this year's Academy. A number of people have suggested that a writer has no business to try assessing the worth of works carried out in paint. This will make sensible people titter. The simple fact is that anybody who has a bob (or, better, who sports sufficient intellectual or social brilliantine to get a buckshee invitation) is entitled to attend and laugh, jibe, praise, deride or get downright sick on the floor, according as his mind and stomach are affected by the exhibits. Artists live, not by the praise of "qualified" and "intelligent" critics, but by the patronage of the public, who buy pictures because they like them. What a world it would be if you could not complain about the quality of a pint unless you were a brewer, or complain about a play unless you were born and bred in the Abbey! We could do with a little less of this sort of childish precosity.

Incidentally, painters are the last people in the world to talk. They discuss and criticise everything without any shyness, and even write queer books about life. A well-known continental painter has found time in recent years to meddle in a lot of matters that have nothing to do with Kunst.—Yours, etc.,

F. O'Brien.

Dublin, April 3rd, 1941.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

Sir,—If I might be permitted to swell the large body of correspondence that has appeared in your paper relative to this year's exhibition, I would like to say that I consider it the finest achievement in twenty years, a period characterised by often heroic and discouraged effort on the part of Irish artists. The work bears broadly stamped across it the evidence of the increasingly beneficial effects of the new independence from foreign influences and the sense of a new responsibility.

In 1935 I had an excellent opportunity of studying in detail, almost surgically, what present day European artists are attempting; this was a superbly organised exhibition in which all European countries, excluding, of course, our own, were represented. I could not imagine a better excuse for suppressing the practice of painting altogether. It was clear that the Continental artistic mind has become, speaking generally, an arid waste, religiously, philosophically and emotionally abortive. On the other hand, Irish painting, still inspired by the nationally inspired elan of the past two decades, showed every indication of taking the European lead. The present exhibition shows such an advance on last year's as to be almost out of logical touch with it. Professor Keating, for example, has arrived at an entirely new dialect.

The same advance is noticeable in sculpture, whether of new or old craftsmen, and in the region of water-colours, always at a disadvantage in proximity to oils. I hope that this advance will be maintained next year, and there is no reason why it should not. A satisfactory position should also be found for the decorative arts, always a strong point here however atrociously neglected. The work of Mia Cranwill, O Mornachain, King, Golden Reeves and others has always deserved comprehensive and collective exhibition.—Yours, etc.,

L. S. Gogan.

FOOT AND MOUTH DISEASE

WARNING TO FARMERS AND STOCK OWNERS

The position regarding Foot and Mouth disease has now become so serious as to be a matter of GRAVE NATIONAL CONCERN.

In their own interests, and to stop further dislocation of the live stock industry, farmers should do all in their power to assist the Department of Agriculture in stamping out the disease.

Farmers can help the Department in the following ways:—

(1) By reporting at once any suspicious symptoms to the nearest Garda barracks.

(2) By keeping away from other herds and by instructing their employees to do likewise.

(3) By keeping other persons away from their herds and lands.

It has now been established that in most of the recent outbreaks infection has been spread through personal contacts.

SYMPTOMS OF THE DISEASE

The first symptoms are lameness or slavering at the mouth. In affected cattle, salivation is generally accompanied by a smacking or sucking sound—a very characteristic symptom of the disease.

Sudden lameness in cattle, sheep or pigs should arouse strong suspicion.

The State will pay full compensation for all animals which have to be destroyed on account of the disease, but the Minister for Agriculture has power to refuse payment, and will not hesitate to do so, in any case where the existence of the disease is concealed.

FAILURE TO REPORT THE EXISTENCE OF THE DISEASE WITH ALL PRACTICABLE SPEED IS AN OFFENCE INVOLVING HEAVY PENALTIES.

Issued by the Department of Agriculture.

WILL SECURITY KNOCK AT YOUR DOOR?

We all want to make sure of a happy old age—nobody is anxious to continue working until the end of his days. Some of us are lucky to be in employment which is pensionable, but the majority have to make their own provision for the future. Those of us who are pensionable would also like to have a financial nest egg when we retire to help to achieve some long cherished desire.

Life Assurance will help to make your dreams for the future come true, and banish the fear of want in your old age.

We will guarantee any sum you desire, payable when you wish to retire, and we will pay this sum to your dependents any time after you complete the contract should death occur.

Write to-day for particulars of our Endowment Assurance Policies.

Elsey May Saddle Two Winners at Ripon

OPPOSITION from Southern stables will not be strong at Ripon to-day, but Northern trainers will provide keen competition for the prizes. Beinn Dearg will deputise for the Lincoln failure, Uncle Archie, in the Studley Royal Handicap, but the Manchester November Handicap winner may not concede the weight to several of his rivals. A course of hurdling has improved Paradise Club, who ran well at Lincoln. Planchado and Meshra probably will prove the best of Fred Armstrong's lot, and Rattler has sound claims; for he won three races last season and stays well. Ferniehurst is a winner over the course, and Noble Glen and Blue Pearl II. are fancied, but I prefer Joe Batley, who runs instead of the Nottingham winner, Kit Carson. He showed improvement towards the end of last season, and won at Catterick Bridge. Elsey is likely to sadddle a couple of winners in Taffrail, who scored at Lincoln, and Bosanquet, runner-up to Sister Carol on the Carholme. Selections:—

Fountains Plate—Sybil Sherwood g.
Spa Handicap—Formamint.
Yore Handicap—Admiral Fisher.
Studley Handicap—Joe Batley.
Grewelthorpe Plate—Taffrail (nap).
Hackfall Plate—Bosanquet.

DOUBLE—Taffrail and Bosanquet.

Faughs and Eoghan Ruadh at Crumlin

BY PAT'O.

Few hurling clubs can boast of Faugh-a-Ballagh's record in Dublin competitions. They have continued without a break since 1885. Opening as a football club they took up hurling fifty years ago, and have many titles to their credit. Holders of the Dublin Senior League and Championship in 1940, they are unbeaten this year, and seem likely to retain both titles. To-morrow they meet their stoutest opponents, Eoghan Ruadh, a native Dublin side, built up from Bolton Street National Schools foundation. Eoghan Ruadhs have done well in the League, and are hurling well at the moment. They won well from Civil Service at Crumlin, and should play well on the same pitch to-morrow, without threatening Faugh's unbroken record. Fixtures:—

Crumlin—Faughs v. Eoghan Ruadh, 11.45; St. Marys v. Parnells, 1.15; St. Josephs v. O'Tooles, at 2.30.

Parnell Park—Sean McDermotts v. St. Agnes, 12; Civil Service v. Sylvesters, 1.30.

Army Ground—Young Irelands v. Garda, 12.

Junior Championships:—Mullingar—Longford v. Westmeath (F.); Muinebeg—Kilkenny v. Carlow (H. and F.); Magherafelt—Derry v. Fermanagh (F.); Newcastle—Down v. Antrim (F.); Irvinestown—Fermanagh v. Tyrone (F.).

Association Football
Seven Goals in Match at Dalymount

ST. JAMES'S GATE 4 GLENTORAN 3

SEVEN goals were scored in the match between St. James's Gate and Glentoran at Dalymount Park last evening, and there was plenty of bright, ground football, but the one player whom most of the spectators went to see, McKennan, of Partick Thistle fame, did not travel with the visitors, and St. James's Gate, without Carey, of Manchester City, won by the odd goal.

Kennedy (two), Rogers and Bradshaw scored for the winners, and Lavery got the goals for the Belfast team.

Although St. James's Gate had much more of the play, particularly in the second half, they could be accounted lucky to win by the odd goal, as Kennedy's second score had a very strong suspicion of offside.

In the first period the play was even, but each side missed several easy chances before and after the interval. The game had just started when Bradshaw rapped the post from short range, and, when right through on his own, O'Rourke sent a rather feeble one to Elliott, while Kennedy hit the upright, and Bradshaw was a little wide when nicely placed. The home centre-forward was not in his happiest mood, and after Kennedy's second goal in the second half, he missed a real sitter. In this half also Kennedy skied the ball when he looked certain to net it.

The Glentoran forwards were well held by the home defence, in which Clarke, the Bohemian centre-half, always had a firm grip on Martin, who rarely came into the picture, and, but for the excellent play of the Glentoran halves, and of Keddie, in particular, the game might have taken a more definite turn in favour of the Gate, whose backs and half-backs gave little away. Kennedy and Jackson struck up a most useful partnership on the Gate's right wing, and most of the danger to the Dubliner's goal came from the right, on which Douglas and Lavery operated rather effectively.

St. James's Gate held a 2-1 lead at the interval, the scorers being Kennedy (12 mins.), and Rogers (36 mins.), Glentoran's score coming from Lavery (29 mins.). Lavery equalised inside five minutes of restarting, and Kennedy again put his side in front after thirteen minutes. Lavery was the busiest player among the Glentoran forwards, and after twenty-three minutes he again balanced it. The winning goal was a characteristic shot by Bradshaw. In the closing stages the goalkeepers, who, throughout were in grand form, brought off fine saves in the fast fading light.

St. James's Gate—Matier (Bradford); Noonan, Olphert (Shelbourne), O'Reilly, J. Clarke (Bohemians), Doyle (Shelbourne), Kennedy, Jackson, Bradshaw, Rogers, O'Rourke.

Glentoran — Elliot (Wolves); Young (Arsenal), Gray, McMillan (Millwall), Irvine, Keddie (Hamilton), Robinson (Birmingham), Grice, Martin (Notts Co.), Lavery (—), Douglas (Larkhill).

Owens and McAuley Again in Final

Gerald Owens and Captain McAuley, representing the Skerries Club, for the second year in succession last evening reached the final of the Irish Open Men's Foursomes at Dun Laoghaire, and to-day will play the thirty-six holes with Dr. Maurice O'Brien (Milltown) and Kevin Troy (Woodbrook). The first eighteen will start at 2 o'clock and the second round at 5.30.

Owens and McAuley had a flying start in their match with J. Carr and W. McMullan. They held a lead of three holes playing the fifth, and turned three up. The Sutton players staged a capital recovery, and at the fifteenth were only one down. Owens and McAuley, however, took the sixteenth for dormy, and the former, holing from six yards at the seventeenth, brought about their defeat by 3 and 1. Kevin Duggan and A. O'Malley, of Hermitage, had a fine match all the way with O'Brien and Troy, but they took three putts on the home green when they had a good chance of the hole with the opposition in the bunker guarding the green in the like, and lost by one up.

THE RED CROSS MATCHES

To-morrow the series of professional matches for the Red Cross will be resumed at Carlow, when P. J. Mahon and J. Kelly will play Harry Bradshaw and Eddie Hackett at 3.30. The committee of the Carlow Club has decided to allow visitors paying the admission fee to use the course and clubhouse all day.

DUBLIN
HOME FUNDS TO THE FORE
BRITISH EQUITIES DECLINE

Markets displayed a little more activity in the Dublin Stock Exchange yesterday, and Local Securities continued firm, with Home Government Funds the chief centre of interest. The latest war advices caused some nervousness among holders of British Securities, and the tone was dull.

The Second National Loan gave way to 111½, but the Third Loan advanced 10s. to 110½, while the Fourth Loan rose to 103¾, and 4 p.c. Exchequer Bonds firmed up to 107⅞. Irish Sugar Deb. gained a point at 105, and the remainder of the group presented a steady appearance.

There was some selling of British Funds, and 3½ p.c. War Loan closed 8s. 9d. lower at 104 5/16. Banks enjoyed quiet support, and Bank of Ireland Stock was raised a point to 282.

Guinness Ord., in sympathy with other leading Industrials, slipped back to 62s. 6d. Dublin Distillers "A" hardened to 4s. 10½d., but Distillers Ord. advised easier at 61s. 6d. A more cheerful atmosphere prevailed in Home Rails. Great Northern Pref. improved to 10½, and the Guar. advanced a point to 37. Other issues looked rather buyers, with the exception of Great Southern Pref., which lost a point at 7.

Alliance Gas Ord. hardened to 19s. 3d. Draperies were in request, and Crowe Wilson Ord. rose pence to 13s. Cement Ord. recovered a shade to 27s. 1½d. and Drogheda Manure Pref. jumped sharply to 80s. Irish Times 1st Pref. again tended higher, and a number of other Irish Industrials were dealt in at steady levels.

Tobaccos were a weak feature, and B.A.T. Ord. drooped to 88s. 1½d., and Imperial Tobaccos relapsed 1s. 6d. to 94s. Textiles showed practically no change, and Courtaulds repeated 30s. 9d. Dunlop Rubbers and Imperial Chemical Ord. were nominally easier, and Vickers Ord. shaded off to 15s. Shell Transport Ord. advised lower, and Hawker Siddeley Ord quoted 11s. 9d.

THE MONEY MARKET

There was no further alteration in the syndicate bid for the weekly offer of Treasury bills yesterday, but competition from outside quarters was a little more keen than on the previous Friday, and the market quota dropped from 28 to 26 per cent of requirements. In the market conditions were little changed from the previous day.

In the silver market forward metal advanced 1/16d. to reach parity with the spot quotation, which was unaltered at 23½d. per ounce.

BOXING AT CORK

In a cruiser-weight bout at Cork last night Pat Mulcahy, Irish champion, knocked out Joss Barton (Jamaica) in the third round, and in another cruiser-weight contest Osmond Bennett (Cork) beat Eddie Downey (Dublin) on a technical k.o. in the second round after Downey had been knocked out of the ring four times and was twice down for short counts.

Other Results:—Middle-weight — Mossy Condon (Cork) beat Boyo Murphy (Dublin) over 10 rounds; welter-weight—Brandy McCarthy (Cork), and Corporal Jack Linehan (Cork) fought a draw over eight rounds; feather-weight—Ned Cronin (Cork) beat Siki O'Neill (Dublin) over eight rounds.

LONDON
STOCKS DRIFT DOWNWARDS
DESIRE TO REDUCE COMMITMENTS

The nearness of the Budget precluded any improvement in conditions on the London Stock Markets yesterday, and, indeed, sentiment generally deteriorated owing to uncertainty regarding the Yugoslavian situation and the latest turn of events in Libya. From the outset the majority of operators showed a disposition to reduce rather than increase commitments in front of the week-end, and, with Gilt-edged securities giving a dull lead, most sections were pointed downwards throughout the day.

Sellers made their appearance early in the day in the Gilt-edged market, and, in the absence of anything but trifling buying orders, quotations continued to depreciate. Old War Loan dropped another ⅛ to 104⅝, and similar recessions were marked in Old Consols and Conversion 3½ per cent. India stocks were equally flat, both the 3 per cent. and 3½ per cent. shedding ¼ to 88½ and 99½, respectively.

In the Foreign section, Japanese Bonds continued to enjoy support, and while the 6 per cent. of 1924 advanced afresh to 29 the 5½ per cent. Conversion issue gained no less than 2 to 29½. Chinese Loans were sympathetically firmer, and Brazilians also made a cheerful showing.

Interest in British Rails underwent a further reduction, and in company with "Gilts" the market fell away in face of scattered end-of-week profit-taking. Southerns were marked down all round, as were Great Western issues, the Ord. dropping ½ to 33¼. L M S issues also declined. Foreign Rails gave another encouraging performance, with Corboda Central issues and Argentine Great Western 5 per cent. Debs. among the brighter features. Exceptionally, B.A. and Pacific 4½ per cent. Cons. Debs. suffered a setback to 28.

NO HEAVY SELLING

Few buyers were in evidence in the Industrial market, and following a hesitant start most sections assumed a dull tone, though actual selling pressure was far from heavy. Tobaccos continued to offer resistance to liquidation, but "Bats" closed 7½d. down at 88/1½, and "Imps" eased by the same amount to 92/6. Declines in the Brewery section also were mostly small, Guinness being only a few pence off at 63/3.

Stores formed one of the weaker groups, Marks and Spencer weakening to 32/3, while Woolworth Ord. dropped 3d. to 47/6. Aircrafts were without important change, while Steels held up well, with Vickers again attracting quiet support up to 15/3. Rayons took their cue from Courtaulds, which shed 6d. to 30/6, and in a lifeless Electrical Equipment group Generals and English Electric were among those which suffered modest losses. In other directions Dunlops managed to close steady at 34/-, but Chemicals lost the turn, and dullness was noticeable in London Brick, Morris and Cable Ord.

Mines wound up the week in dreary fashion, and after their recent advance West Africans met with profit-taking, which reduced Ashantis to 45/7½, Bibianis to 18/9, and G.C. Selection to 10/6. Kaffirs were virtually neglected.

There was little selling pressure in the Oil section, but, in the absence of buyers, small movements were mainly against holders. Among the recognised leaders, Anglo-Iranians and "Shells" both lost 7½d. Trinidad issues held their ground, with T.P.D.s maintained at 54/4½ on hopes of E.P.T. concessions.

THE AMERICAN MARKETS

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

NEW YORK, Friday.

The Stock market opened firm and active. Prices were generally fractionally higher, as yesterday's spurt was carried over psychologically in face of the customary deterrents. However, trading turned narrowly irregular during the morning. Light fractional gains were still predominant, but the pace slowed down, and at mid-day the trend was uncertain.

President Roosevelt's allocation of $500,000,000 for ships and shipways stressed the strides being made in the Arms programme.

The market fluctuated narrowly in the final dealings, and closed barely steady.

LEATHER COMPANY'S MEETING

Trading conditions during 1940 were most difficult, said Mr. Kennedy O'Brien (Chairman) at the annual meeting of the Dickens Leather Co., Ltd., in Dublin yesterday. There were fluctuations in prices of raw material, and it became less easy to obtain supplies. The trading profit amounted to £5,666. The directors recommended the paying of a further dividend on the Preference shares, and a dividend of 10 per cent. on the Ordinary shares.

Mr. O'Brien reported that the company had a very large stock of raw materials. The business of tanning Irish sheep pelts had developed, and Irish boot and glove manufacturers were using large quantities of the leathers made from these.

Cole and Deputy Patrick Cogan have given notice to move a motion in the Dail, asking for the appointment of a Select Committee of seven deputies to investigate publicly and report to the Dail on the position of the pig industry, having regard to the amount and cost of feeding stuffs available over the next three months in relation to the pig population of the country.

CLERY AND CO.

RECEIVER'S CROSS-EXAMINATION

(BEFORE MR. JUSTICE GAVAN DUFFY.)

The direct examination of Mr. Eustace J. Shott, chartered accountant, 39 Dame street, Dublin, was continued on the resumed hearing of the action of Messrs. Clery and Co., Ltd., Lower O'Connell street, Dublin, against him and Mr Denis Guiney, draper, 79 Talbot street, Dublin, asking the Court to set aside a contract for the sale of the company's entire assets by Mr. Shott, as receiver appointed by the debenture holders, the Equity and Law Life Assurance Society, to Mr. Guiney for £200,000.

The company allege that the sale was at an under-value, and this the defence denies.

The cross-examination of Mr. Shott was opened in the afternoon and had not concluded when the Court adjourned until Tuesday, 22nd inst.

Mr. Leonard, K.C., Mr. Lavery, K.C., and Mr. Marnan (instructed by Messrs. E. and G. Stapleton) appeared for Messrs. Clery; Mr. Overend, K.C., Mr. H. J Moloney, K.C., and Mr. Vaughan Wilson (instructed by Messrs. Whitney, Moore and Keller) for Mr. Shott; and Mr. Rice, K.C., Mr. Costello, K.C., and Mr. Davy (instructed by Messrs. James L. Burke and Co.) for Mr. Guiney.

WHAT MR. GUINEY'S BANKERS SAID

Mr. Shott, speaking of his negotiations with Mr. Guiney, said that at their meeting on November 12, when he indicated that the price would be, approximately, £222,500, Mr. Guiney remarked that it was a high price, but that he was prepared to pay it so long as the sale was completed at once, his reason for wanting it completed at once being that the company had got into so bad a state that every week or month that passed would make it more difficult to pull it round and that he had to take full advantage of the Christmas season.

Two days later a meeting of the creditors' committee took up the attitude that it was a pity that there would not be anything for the creditors, but they raised no objection to his going on with the sale.

Having referred to proposals of Mr. William Dwyer, of Cork, and Sir Christopher Nixon's efforts to raise further capital, Mr. Shott asked was it any wonder that he had been very much relieved by at last contacting a plain, straight business man with whom he could talk business, and who had the necessary resources.

He had made it his business to inquire how Mr. Guiney was to fulfil what he was holding out, and had been told by his bankers: "You have no reason to worry as regards money."

At a meeting of November 15, he told Mr. Guiney of a suggestion that had been made at a meeting of the creditors' committee the previous day, that something should be provided, if possible, for the creditors, and Mr. Guiney replied that the creditors never could have got anything, but that he was prepared to pay them some small composition out of his own pocket, to assure them of his goodwill. He explained to Mr. Guiney that he could not pay the creditors of Messrs. Clery, and that the obvious way to deal with that would be to add the amount of his offer to the price originally discussed. That was how the final price of the assets was raised from £222,500 to £230,000. He was more than satisfied that had he not got his present purchaser he would not have received anything like the price he had obtained.

Cross-examined by Mr. Leonard, he said that there was no doubt that he had gone to Mr. Guiney for advice.

Mr. Leonard—And there is no doubt that the advice he gave you was that the business should be given away as scrap?—I do not agree.

And you have taken his advice?—I do not agree.

You said you did not know Mr. Guiney personally?—Yes.

But you had heard of him?—Who in Dublin has not?

"OUTRAGEOUS AND MEAN OFFENCE"

GROCER SENT TO PRISON

In the Circuit Criminal Court yesterday, before Judge Shannon, Christopher Dunne, grocer, Mary's Abbey, Dublin, who had pleaded guilty to house-breaking and being a bankrupt, unlawfully removing and concealing portion of his property from a premises then in the hands of the Official Assignee, was sentenced to six months' imprisonment.

The Judge described the offence as being mean and outrageous. The prisoner had invoked the assistance and protection of the courts for relief from his financial obligations.
